BIG SMUGGLER CONFESSES

Hopedale Strikers Clubbed by Boston Police

RAT POISON BLAMED IN EATON CASE

State Detective John H. Scott of Braintree, chief investigator in the Eaton mystery, here today that he believed rough-on-rats was the form of arsenic which killed Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton of Assinippi.

This is the first statement from any official in the investigation which names a specific arsenical preparation.

On the day of Mrs. Jessie May Eaton's arrest, charged with the murder of her husband, District Attorney Albert F. Burke, said that "some form of arsenic" killed the Admiral. The indictment went so far as to mention "white arsenic," but that is as far as the specification has gone.

Hard to Trace Purchase.

No form, compound or preparation has been named.

It became apparent, the moment that State Officer Scott said Rough-on-Rats was probably the form of poison, that the search to locate any purchase of it would be infinitely more difficult than if arsenic in commercial form had been used.

To buy arsenic straight involves considerable questioning, sign ng the book and other formalities.

Rough-on-Rats may be bought as a legitimate rat poison, without all this trouble.

State Officer Scott said today:

I believe the poison that killed Admiral Eaton was Rough-on-Rats. In my opinion that was the form of arsenic used. That is a high percent poison—about ninety per cent. It would leave unassorted traces of white arsenic in the stomach.

If the specific poison was Rough-on-Rats, as I now believe, it will be largely a matter of luck if we can trace it. Our hardest work is before us, to find the place where the poison was secured.

It is possible, of course, that poison was secured two or three years ago, but we consider it more probable that it was obtained recently.

In our search for the poison source we have traced back every step that Mrs. Eaton made this year in her trips away from home.

Do we think poison was obtained on any of these trips? Who can tell? It will be the hardest job of all to trace this poison. I have three assistants doing nothing else but working on this poison end of the case. I am assured that, if they are

Wilson Decides on the Recognition of Chinese Republic

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The provisional government of the republic of China will be formally recognized by the United States within the next week. President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan held a conference at the White House today at which it was decided to take this action.

PROVIDENCE POLICE REFUSE THE I. W. W. PERMIT TO PARADE

PROVIDENCE, April 2.—The Providence police have refused to allow the I. W. W. striking garment workers to hold a parade or an open-air public demonstration of any character.

About 500 garment workers employed in the stores are on strike, demanding recognition of the I. W. W., an increase in wages and better working conditions.

Superintendent of Police John A. Murray, after being informed that the strikers contemplated holding a parade, said that he would not issue a permit for it, and that if the strikers attempted to parade without a permit the police would disperse them.

ADMITS CUSTOMS FRAUDS

A confession made in the wholesale smuggling cases now under investigation by government officials has frightened the heads of the smuggling gangs and correspondingly elated the investigators.

It became known today that when Chief John E. Wilkie of the United States Treasury agents was in New York on Sunday he obtained this confession in connection with the smuggling frauds.

A copy of this is now in the hands of Assistant United States District Attorney Garland of this city.

The confession is reported to be unusually complete, giving not only names of persons involved in the elaborate scheme to get dutiable goods in free, but also describing methods used at places where the trick was accomplished, dates and amounts of goods brought in are reported to be included.

Gets to Ears of Sulprits.

Hardly had Chief Wilkie returned to Boston, where he is now pursuing the local end of the fraud, than whispers of this confession were heard.

These whispers speedily got to the ears of persons said to be heavily involved in the smuggling schemes. The fear which the report caused was quick and keen.

With the added data to work on, Chief Wilkie, Special Treasury Agent Chanler of Boston and United States District Attorney French and his assistant, Mr. Garland, renewed their Boston investigation actively. They expect to submit a mass of evidence to the new federal Grand Jury next Tuesday.

Find Big Deposits by Shevlin.

Today the Boston probe was aimed at the personal affairs of T. L. Shevlin, the customhouse clerk who has been arrested, with his wife, Mrs. Anne Shevlin, in connection with the smuggling of dressmakers' materials through this port.

After Shevlin was reduced from a deputy inspector to a clerk his pay dropped to $1,000 a year. Investigations found an account in Shevlin's name in a Boston bank with deposits ranging from $2000 to $4,000.

STRIKE-BREAKERS' QUARTERS RAIDED BY HEALTH BOARD

The Board of Health today took a hand in the garment workers' strike, ordering three different employers quartering imported strike breakers in the buildings their workshops are located in, "to comply with the city health regulations or close the shops."

Inspector Jordon of the board later declared that this resulted from a raid on the shops in question last night. In each instance, he said, the health regulations were found to have been violated.

Those violations were not deemed sufficiently glaring to warrant immediate criminal prosecution, but the employers were today notified that they must live up to the law or close their shops.

MEMBERS OF PATROL ARE HELD

Henry M. Jarrett, manager, and Ralph A. Harding, a member of the Boston fire patrol, are under arrest today, charged with larceny and obtaining money under false pretenses.

They are at liberty on their own recognizance until tomorrow morning, when the case continued from Monday comes up again in the Municipal Court. Jarrett and Harding have been told that they may be required then to furnish bonds in $2,000 to await action by the grand jury.

They were arrested on warrants sworn out by Albert T. Bicknell, printer, and S. M. Tench, a machinist, both of whom had places of business in the building at No. 370 Atlantic avenue, which was badly damaged by the Foster's Wharf fire.

The arrest of the two men was not known until today. The police have tried to keep the fact they had been arrested a secret, as the investigation has not been concluded and more arrests are expected today. The arrests that are yet to be made will be in connection with the looting of the Bruman-Dow offices.

Jarrett and Harding were arrested last Friday noon by Special Officer William Carey of the Court Square Station. Carey has been working in connection with the police of the Hanover Street Station, who are investigating the Bruman-Dow thefts.

Police Push Inquiry.

They were arraigned the same day they were arrested and the case was continued until Monday, when it again went over until tomorrow. The police are said to have requested the continuances to pursue their investigations further.

The Boston Fire Patrol Company combines fire notification and building superintendence. C. A. Chandler is president and Henry M. Jarrett, manager.

The Bruman-Dow building was under care of the Boston Fire and Police Notification Company, but this arrangement ceased after the Bruman-Dow fire and the Boston Fire Patrol Company acquired the firm as a subscriber.

Manager Jarrett of the Boston Fire Patrol Company denied vigorously today that his company had any business with Bruman-Dow up to the time of the fire there, or with any Foster's Wharf concern up to the time of the wharf fire. Mr. Jarrett said:

"Some time after the wharf fire my company obtained customers in the burned block, who wished to be notified if such mishaps occurred again. At the Bruman-Dow fire the Fire Patrol Company simply notified some members of the firm whom they knew that there was a fire. Four days later the firm, in consideration of this notification, became a subscriber.

Hired Man to Watch Building.

"No Boston Fire Patrol employes were in any way connected with this fire, save in reporting it. Some five days later one of our men was employed to watch the outside of the building on Beverly street.'

Mr. Jarrett said two Foster's wharf subscribers had begun proceedings against the canvasser of the company and the company itself, claiming they had got no return for $6 paid for fire protection.

Fire Commissioner Cole said today he would give the District Attorney any evidence he obtained.

"For the good name of the fire department," declared the commissioner warmly, "I will get any man who has ever been doing any crooked work and stealing at fires and place him behind the bars."

Mitchell to Open Congress Fight in Brighton Tonight

Former Congressman John J. Mitchell of Marlboro tonight opens his formal campaign as the Democratic nominee for Congressman from the Thirteenth District, against Norman H. White of Brookline, Progressive, and Alfred L. Cutting of Weston Republican. The primaries were held yesterday. Cutting, the only unopposed candidate, winning over Mayor James H. Gleason of Marlboro.

The first campaign meeting will be held in Brighton Hall, Market street, Brighton, before members of the Brighton Working Men's Club.

Mr. Mitchell's campaign will be practically in charge of Daniel J. Daley, chairman of the executive committee of the District Campaign Committee. In addition to this organization, the State Committee and a Marlboro Mitchell Campaign Committee will co-operate in the work.

A meeting will be held at the City Club tomorrow to organize the campaign. Among tonight's speakers will be Mayor Fitzgerald, Chairman Thomas J. Riley of the State Committee and former Senator Thomas H. Dowd.

IGNORE DEFI OF I. W. W. LEADERS

PROVIDENCE, April 2.—Merchant tailors here say they have received requests from the I. W. W. leaders who are direct ng the strike of the garment workers, to find out immediately if they have nonunion employes, and, if they have, to take instant steps to have them join the I. W. W. The merchant tailors who claim to have received the notices say they will take no notice of them. The manufacturers have refused the demands of the strikers.

ARMY AVIATOR FAURE IS KILLED; 355TH VICTIM

VERSAILLES, France, April 2.—Lieutenant Faure, a military aviator, was killed at Buc today when his aeroplane collapsed. He is the 355th victim of aviation. Faure was well known in the United States. In 1910 he made an unsuccessful attempt to win the Bishop cup offered for the longest flight from Massachusetts.

He had made over 300 flights by balloon and aeroplane. In 1905 he won the international aeronautic cup, covering 800 miles. In 1908 the airman perfected a scheme for crossing the Atlantic in a balloon, but had to give it up for lack of funds.

CLUBS END RIOT AT DRAPER MILLS

One thousand I. W. W. strikers and strike sympathizers at the Draper Company's mills at Hopedale, some of them armed with baseball bats, clashed with a force of 250 police today at the Hopedale-Milford line after the strikers had held up three trolley cars and compelled them of operatives on their way to work.

With nightsticks and bats, the police clubbed the strikers and routed them over the Milford line. One hundred strikers were hit. At least two were reviled to the ground. One of these was taken to the Milford Hospital for treatment.

Twenty-eight uniformed Boston policemen, under two sergeants, all with uplifted clubs, attacked and dispersed a mob of 500 strikers, who formed half of the throng that had marched from their homes in Milford in the direction of the Draper mill property. Boston policemen clubbed strikers, forcing them away from the mills.

The injured man, who was treated at the Milford Hospital, was Paldo Chimino, of No. 42 Beech street, Milford. He received a scalp wound.

Armed With Baseball Bats.

The attack by the police came as a complete surprise to the strikers, who had bought practically all the baseball bats in Milford. Their parade started about 5:30 o'clock. Their only leader was a man who led the line of march, blowing a cornet. He played the "Internationale," the rallying song of the I. W. W.

On the way to the mills the strikers broke ranks to attack three electric cars, filled with workers going to Hopedale. Fifty were ordered from the cars and were intimidated into joining the march.

At the Hopedale line the strikers were confronted by a small army of policemen who had assembled in Hopedale overnight. One hundred were in uniform, coming from Boston, Worcester, Framingham, Lawrence and Lynn, in response to appeals from the Hopedale Selectmen.

Halted by Police.

Across the streets the police ranged themselves. The strikers were commanded ed to halt and were then disarmed of their bats. The police then ordered them to disperse. The muttering mob began to fall back slowly. The police drove them faster, clubbing the strikers, all of whom were men.

The police intend to use drastic methods with the strikers. No crowds were allowed to congregate in Hopedale today. The entire town is being patrolled by a dozen police in Hopedale's motor wagon. The only directors of the Draper Company on the scene today were C. H. Bristow Draper, son of former Governor Eben S. Draper, and Fred Jackson Farnsworth, both directors of the corporation.

Detailed by O'Meara.

The Boston patrolmen were detailed for duty in Hopedale by Police Commissioner O'Meara. A request for aid came to Mayor Fitzgerald from the Hopedale Selectmen. This request was sent to the Police Commissioner, who picked twenty-eight unarmed patrolmen and two sergeants from the following divisions:

Division 1, two men; division 2, five men and Sergeant Harry Berry; division 3, two men and Sergeant P. Henry Burns; two men from divisions 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 12 and 16; and one man each from divisions 11, 14 and 15.

In sending the detail Commissioner O'Meara broke a long-established precedent of the police department. Years ago details of Boston policemen were sent to Springfield when the Harvard-Yale games were played there, and at times details did duty at the Readville racetrack.

Later the old Police Commission ruled against this, and until the Hopedale strike Commissioner O'Meara had maintained this rule. The law provides that the mayor of a city may detail police to other places upon requisition by the mayor or selectmen of the city or town in need of assistance.

In addition to the Boston contingent, a detail of a dozen officers arrived from Worcester today, sent by the chief of police in that city as soon as news was telephoned to him that a crowd had started out for this town.

Strikers Plan Meetings.

A number of officers are also on hand from Lynn, Lowell and Clinton. The selectmen expressed the opinion that the force of police now in Hopedale is sufficiently large. The force of 100 officers is increased by half a hundred "loyal" employes who have volunteered to go on defensive duty.

Two mass meetings will probably be held today, according to announcements made by the strikers.

A committee of six, including two Italians, two Armenians and two English-speaking workers, will call on the officials of the Draper Company today and present their demands.

It was definitely settled that the men want a minimum wage of $2.75 a day for foundry workers, a nine-hour day for all employes, and a ten per cent. increase for all workers.

Joseph J. Etter, the big figure of the strikers at Lawrence, is expected to be here by Thursday at the latest to lead the strike.

The strikers are reported in some instances to have boasted that their ranks would be greatly increased today, some joining them voluntarily and others being compelled to do so. The threat of force has caused great excitement.

Officials of the Draper Company announced that a large number of men were out merely because they had been intimidated. This intimidation consisted, they said, of strikers resorting to shoving and pushing and other similar rough tactics.

Chief Kellogg of Hopedale, an employe of the Draper concern, and Chief O'Neil of Milford have co-operated in lastic preparations. There are only ten men on the Milford force. Hopedale has only two constables.

Captain William H. Proctor of the State police is here today, as are also Captain William F. Murray of Worcester, State Inspectors Robert L. Holt of Milbury, Arthur E. Keating of Boston and Arthur Wells of Lynn.

Today the strikers claim that they have a thousand men in their ranks. The Draper Company, however, disputes these figures.

Lieutenants of Etter and Giovannitti are said to be working among the men.

A statement issued by the Draper Company reads, in part:

A number of men, largely not employes of the Draper Company, marched into Hopedale, making a noisy demonstration in the street in the vicinity of the works and prevented by force a number of the employes from entering the shops.

There were about five hundred in the crowd, principally Italians and Armenians. No demand has been made on the company, and the shops are running in all departments, although short-handed.

There has been considerable excitement and many meetings have been held in the vicinity recently which have been addressed by so-called I. W. W. leaders, and it is believed that organization is responsible for the trouble.

WHOSE little baby is this? "Little Red Top"—that's what's she's called because her hair is red—was found on the steps of the Unitarian Church at West Newton. The clothing of the waif was of the finest.

CHURCH WAIF IS CHRISTENED 'LITTLE RED TOP'

"Whose little girl baby is Red Top?"

The little girl herself can't say, because she's only three weeks old. When she was found on the steps of the West Newton Unitarian Church by George W. Weeks, the sexton, Weeks thought at first that some one was playing an April Fool joke on him. The insistent demand of the infant for something to allay hunger, however, soon convinced him that it was real.

So he took it to Matron Ella Mason of the police station, who received her with open arms. The next step in her career came with her transference to the Newton Hospital, where she was made at home in the Dennison ward for children.

She has the reddest hair rung nabies—a lot of it. Hence the nickname, "Little Red-Top," the only one by which she is known among the nurses in the hospital.

Baby Well Dressed.

Great care had been taken with the baby and the baby's clothes. When she was deserted she was well dressed, and her clothes have every mark of respectability. Her underclothing was of waite linen, and in addition to a long baby cloak she wore two capes of white plush trimmed with silk, and fastened at the top with a blue ribbon.

Today she made a visit, under the watchful care of Matron Lyman, to the State House, where the officials connected with the State Board of Charities gravely examined her case while she waited patiently. Then she was turned over to Superintendent James H. Fee of the State Board of Minor Wards and will later be placed under the care of some State institution.

From clues which have come to light today, it is believed that the child is the daughter of a Boston woman. Twice, just previous to the discovery of the baby, a woman was seen in the neighborhood of the church and carrying a bundle.

Sent Boston Woman.

Weeks, who found the child, saw the woman in the ladies' parlor of the church. She chatted with him a moment and said that she formerly lived in Newton and used to have some "pretty good times" there. She seemed nervous and excited. She was well-dressed, in a tailored suit of gray, and wore a large fur set tastefully trimmed.

Five minutes before, Charles Potter, janitor for the Odd Fellows' building at West Newton, saw the same woman. She asked the way to get a car for Boston, and said she wanted to go by way of Commonwealth avenue.

She was about forty years of age, five feet, two inches in height, and is described as being very pretty.

FOSS PASSES LIE TO ARCHER ON SCHOOL BILL

After the reading of a letter to Senator Quigley in which Governor Foss gave the lie to Dean G. L. Archer of the Suffolk Law School, the Senate, by a vote of 14 to 21, has refused to pass the Suffolk Law School bill over the Governor's veto.

The bill, which has brought forth bitter denunciations and recriminations between the Governor and the dean, is killed for a year, unless the Senate should vote to reconsider it, which is not probable.

Dean Archer claimed that the Governor gave him to understand that he had not and would not veto the bill. Governor Foss declares in his letter that he gave Dean Archer no such intimation, and declares that almost the last words spoken by the dean in an interview with him were an appeal to recall his veto.

Replying to Governor Foss' letter, Dean Archer accuses the Governor of a "cowardly action in waiting until just before the vote was taken on the bill before sending his letter."

"Every word in my letter to the Legislature was absolutely true," he declared. "It is now a question of veracity between the Governor and myself, and I am content to let the public judge for itself.

"It is rather significant that the Governor, who had twenty-four hours after the publication of my letter to the members of the Legislature in which to refute my statement before the House acted, never chose to avail himself of the opportunity, but adopted the cowardly method of waiting until just before the vote was taken, when I had no chance to respond."

In his letter Governor Foss said:

When a personal statement that is at every essential point a pure fabrication is sent to members of the Legislature for the obvious purpose of influencing the vote on an important public question, it becomes necessary to take cognizance of a matter otherwise unworthy of attention.

On Saturday, March 22, Dean Archer of the Suffolk Law School asked for an interview in order that he might make a statement concerning his case. I therefore arranged to see him, and the interview went over the entire matter. The entire conversation, like others I had the same day with other advocates of the bill, proceeded upon the assumption that it was my intention to veto the measure. Almost the last words of Mr. Archer as he left the office were: "The Legislature has passed the bill twice. Won't you recall the veto and let it go by?" My recollection on this point is confirmed by a gentleman who was present during the interview.

Mr. Archer's statement concerning the interview of Saturday is therefore incorrect at every point. In his further statement that I told the newspapers that the bill had become a law he is also wrong.

PANKHURST TRIAL ON FIRE CHARGE OPENS

LONDON, April 2.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the militant suffragettes, who is charged with inciting other suffragettes to burn down the new home of Chancellor David Lloyd-George, pleaded not guilty when her trial began in Old Bailey today.

Mrs. Pankhurst conducted her own defence and showed that she has picked up considerable knowledge of law during her many encounters with the government.

Old Bailey was stormed by a crowd of women, the majority of them suffragettes, when the doors were thrown open. Some of the spectators wore black and yellow sashes a foot wide, bearing in letters ten inches high "Votes for Women."

Mrs. Pankhurst laughed and chatted with friends and smiled at others whom she recognized among the spectators. Although she faced a possible fourteen-year sentence in prison if found guilty, she seemed without fear.

"They could not keep me in prison very long even if they sentenced me for life," she boasted. "I would go on a hunger strike and they would have to let me go in a couple of weeks.

"I will not hesitate to use any and all means possible to obtain my release, though I am sure of technical conviction in this court. But we already have made plans for a great suffragette demonstration in Albert Hall, January 10 next, and no matter how this case goes, I will be out by then to address that meeting, unless I am dead."

The campaign was continued today with more energy than ever on behalf of Miss Zelie Emerson of Detroit, the militant suffragette, who is undergoing two months' imprisonment in Holloway Jail for window breaking and whose case has aroused widespread interest owing to her sufferings from forcible feeding after she had started a "hunger strike."

A cablegram was sent to Mr. Theodore Roosevelt by Beatrice Harraden, the authoress and suffragette.

Eleanor Wilson and Cabinet See Battleships Fire

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. WYOMING, off Hampton Roads, Va., April 2.—With cotton stuffed in their ears, six members of President Wilson's Cabinet stood on the bridge of this big dreadnaught today while her ten and twelve-inch guns only a few feet away shot huge shells in target practice.

On the bridge were Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Secretary of the Interior Lane, Secretary of Labor Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture Houston and Postmaster-General Burleson. It was the first opportunity many of these officials ever had to be aboard a big fighting ship, when her batteries were in action and they marveled at the machine-like precision with which the men worked and the guns thundered their shells at the canvas targets six miles away.

Miss Eleanor Wilson, daughter of President Wilson, and the wives and families of the Cabinet members on the Wyoming, who came to Hampton Roads to see the firing, were on board the Idaho, which followed the ships on the firing line, but took no part in the shooting.

LOBSTER FAMINE IN BOSTON, PRICES SOAR SKYWARD

Owing to the rough weather, there were no lobsters in the wholesale market in Boston today. Yesterday the wholesale price of lobsters in Boston fluctuated between sixty and seventy-five cents a pound. Tomorrow the steamer Yarmouth of the Yarmouth line is expected from Nova Scotia with 150 crates. Each crate will contain 150 lobsters. For an ordinary lobster cargo the steamer should bring 750 to 1,000 crates. The Plant line steamer Aramore is also expected but she is bringing but two crates where she should bring from 200 to 800 to defer part toward supplying the local market.

CONLIN FUNERAL IS TOMORROW

WORCESTER, April 2.—The funeral of Peter A. Conlin, editor and publisher of the Worcester Post, who died Tuesday after a brief illness, will be held tomorrow morning. Solemn high mass of requiem will be offered at St. Peters' Church at 10 o'clock. The deceased was a graduate of Holy Cross College and St. Lawrence College, Ottawa. Some twenty years ago he was a prominent member of the Legislature from Worcester. Delegations will be present at the funeral from the Knights of Columbus, Hesang Verein Frohsinn, the Washington Club, the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the Hound Table Club and other civic organizations.

TELLS HOW "L" IS TRYING TO STOP PROTESTS

The new policy of the Elevated in having a representative present at meetings held to protest against poor street car service resulted last night in the passing of a vote of thanks to the Elevated by the Meeting House Hill Improvement Association.

After several speakers had attacked the service given Dorchester as being not only inadequate but poor, Superintendent Frank I. Wilkins of the Fields' Corner division asked to explain what the Company was doing to improve the situation.

He told of the new general transfer privilege at Upham's Corner by which passengers on inbound cars may be transferred to any other inbound car, the same being true of the outward bound passengers.

Superintendent Wilkins declared that this meant the establishment of seven new transfer privileges, and announced that beginning this morning transfers will be given at King square, Dorchester, between inward bound Neponset avenue cars and outward Adams street cars, and vice versa. He said that during the past week 16 of the biggest cars in the service had been added to the Dorchester quota and that eight more will be put on next week.

The new articulated cars, he said, will surely be added to the Dorchester service in the Summer. He said that an average of 100 trips more a day were made from the Dorchester barns than were made last year.

FORCED TO FIGHT WAY TO FACTORY

AUBURN, N. Y., April 2.—Blotous striking twine mill operatives turned today from the Columbian Rope Company plant to that of the International Harvester Company. Two of the International Harvester repair men were assaulted, and many were held up and had to fight their way into the factory. Both plants are shut down, and no effort had been made to bring in strike-breakers.

HOLD WOMAN WHO MENACED JUDGE GEORGE

Mrs. Sarah J. DeBell was today held in $2,500 for the Grand Jury by Judge Wentworth in the Municipal Court on charges of carrying a loaded revolver and threatening Judge Elijah George of the Probate Court.

On February 5, it is alleged, following the hearing of her case in which she sought possession of her nine-year-old child Frederick, she exhibited a loaded revolver in the court corridor, and made the statement that if her case went against her, she would "get the Judge."

She was taken to the office of her attorney, George H. Ross, in the Carney Building, and later was sent to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation. Later still she was discharged as sane, and was immediately arrested on the two charges.

SECRET REPORT ON BLAKESLEE GIRL'S DEATH IS FILED

Medical Examiner Thomas N. Durell of Somerville today filed in the Malden District Court his report of the autopsy he performed on Helen A. Blakeslee, aged twenty-two, daughter of Henry M. Blakeslee of No. 19 Meridian avenue, Malden, whose death in the Malden Hospital the police are investigating. The report was not made public. It was said District Attorney Higgins would order an inquest.

Miss Blakeslee is the second Malden girl to die under mysterious circumstances within a month. The other was Miss Elizabeth Cummings, aged eighteen, of No. 18 Cross street, whose death is under investigation.

A Little Knowledge Is a Dangerous Thing

When you are so sick that the world looks blue, your body feels heavy, the head aches, the stomach is out of order, it is dangerous to take pills, purgatives, bitters or nostrums—or to take something which will do more harm than good.

Such a condition shows a Liver Disorder, which in turn affects the Stomach, Bowels and Nervous System. Neglected, it may lead to more serious disease. Rightly treated, it can be speedily removed and perfect health restored. Immediate relief is sometimes obtained, but not by a drug which moves your bowels.

Think! Your Liver is sick and that is the most important of your organs. Then the Stomach, Bowels and Nervous System. You need a combination of substances which will do its work in a proper way. That's the way every doctor works. The New Discovery is a combination of Herbs, Roots and Barks, and its combination is declared the most valuable by eminent physicians and scientists. They are not an experiment. You need not take from one to ten pills to see if they work. One or two pills at night are enough. They make you feel fine in the morning. Buy a vial, and get them from any druggist. By mail, 50c or 90c from by mail from A. Bandehow, New York.

A Spring Style Exposition

Just as you'll welcome the green on trees and fields, so will you delight in the freshness and originality, the distinctiveness and breadth of my Spring stocks, everything a year in advance of ordinary readymades. That's why my store is the stellar attraction among the better than average dresser these days. Every new idea of fashion is not merely represented but completely covered in two and three button soft roll sacks, Walking Suits, Norfolks, etc. Take for exampie pin stripes and club checks. You have no conception of what these two terms can really mean in variety until you see the great showing of them I'm making. And there are just as many new ideas for the conservative dresser as well as the man who wants the tip top of fashion and the prices range to meet any purse limit—with new things at each.

EATON NEIGHBORS TELL OF POISON PELLETS THAT KILLED DOGS AND FOXES

not enough, I may have any additional assistance I think necessary.

Working on Death of Dogs.

We are still working on the case of the poisoned hounds at Ridge Hill. As yet it would be impossible to connect it with the Eaton case, still the Eaton case is a poisoning case, and any wholesale poisoning such as that of the hounds, in the neighborhood of the Eaton house, may be thought to have a possible bearing on the Eaton case.

It is possible that the poisoned pellets of tallow which killed the dogs contained three or four different kinds of poison.

Some of the bails may have contained arsenic, some of them strychnine, and others cyanide of potassium.

The particular poison pellets which the dogs bit into seem to me to have acted more as strychnine or cyanide would act. The effect was too sudden for arsenic.

At the time the dogs were poisoned we were satisfied that the poison pellets might have been set out in spite to keep hunters out of the field in which the bodies of the canines were found. But that was mere neighborhood gossip.

We have not been able to substantiate that gossip, or to trace the sales of any such quantities of poison as the tallow pellets contained.

You must understand, however, that if we have not substantiated that neighborhood gossip, we also have not as yet found any connection between the two cases.

Forty-Six Pellets Found.

Interviews were obtained today with owners of Ridge Hill dogs which were killed by the poison pellets and with other persons who found some of the deadly pellets.

No less than five dogs and several foxes were killed. In all, forty-six pellets were found. They were made of tallow, with poison worked into their substance. They were made up about half the size of a billiard ball.

They were found in the woods at Ridge Hill, near Queen Anne's corner. This is about one and one-half miles from the Eaton home in Assinippi Village. Almost the first one found the pellets were Edward Stoddard, George Studley, Alpheus W. Thomas and Charles H. Thomas.

Alpheus Thomas, who lost three dogs while hunting with his nephew, William Thomas, said today:

I was out with my nephew and the three dogs. We didn't have a gun with us. The boy and I wanted to try out two pups, Bird and Bunty, and at the same time run the old dog, Snip.

It was a pleasant day, with no snow on the ground, and we thought it would be a good chance to break in the pups. We struck off to the northward from West Norwell. When near Dowse's field one of the pups jumped over the stone wall into the field. I saw him start to nose something. Then I noticed it was a little white ball.

I jumped the stonewall to kick the pup away from the ball, but in doing so fell, and before I got on my feet again the pup had taken the ball in his mouth. I feared something was wrong. I picked up the pup and started back toward the wall. The other pup which had followed me had also found one of the little white balls. I picked him up also.

With a pup under each arm. I started toward home, my nephew following with the old dog at the end of a chain. I had not gone far when both puppies stiffened out in my arms—dead. I looked around and there was old Snip also dead. The boy was crazy. I was pretty mad myself. I don't know who put the stuff out there, but there was enough to poison a whole community—there must have been two pounds of it.

Notified State Police.

The next day I went to the field with Ed Stoddard, George Bates, George Studley and my brother Charles, and we picked up between forty and fifty of the balls. Nearby we found a wooden box and a small paddle whittled from wood. We figured that the stuff was mixed up in that box. John Scott of the State police, whom we notified, came down here and looked over the ground and took some of the poisoned balls away. We haven't heard what the result of the analysis was. None of us know what the poison was, but to me the action resembled that of strychnine or cyanide rather than arsenic.

George Bates, a neighbor of Thomas' who went with him to Dore's Field, where the poisoned balls were found, said:

It was mighty significant to me that so much poison should be in this neighborhood. I thought the poison acted like arsenic, but of course I don't know. Nothing has been done about it although we heard Officer Scott, Chief of Police James of Hingham, Constable Frank Hammond of Norwell, and a Mr. Phillips of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals have looked into the matter.

Charles Thomas said:

Officer Scott and the other men who have been at work upon this poison dog case, have been unable yet to discover what the poison was bought, although it would seem easy, on account of the immense quantity. I don't think the poison in the pellets was analyzed before the Eaton case. Whether or not such an analysis has been made since, is more than I can say. But it would seem of the utmost importance to me to complete the analysis of the dog poison in order to establish without doubt whether or not it is the same kind of poison that killed Admiral Eaton.

Danger to Children.

George Studley, another of the hunters, said:

I scoured all over the solid looking for footprints, but the ground was hard and it would have been a puzzle for an Indian to have found a mark in that field. Then again we didn't know how long the poison had been out there. Had we found the trails it would have been difficult to have based anything on them. The poisoned pellets were found around conspicuously. I found one of them in a cap in the wall. Just think what might have happened had three or four children gone up there with the dogs and found some of them. One bite would have killed them.

Daughters See Lawyers.

Mrs. Ralph P. Keyes and Miss Dorothy Eaton, the two daughters of the deceased widow, conferred with her counsel, Francis J. Geogan, in Rockland today. Points for the defence were gone over, with suggestions made by Mrs. Eaton from her cell in Plymouth Jail.

Lillian Russell Tells How to Live to Be a Hundred

The fat, the skinny, the old, the young, the medium of both sexes and all degrees of beauty gathered at the fountain of youth which the fair Lillian Russell set going up in Symphony Hall last night when she gave her audience explicit directions on how to live to be a hundred, and then die young.

Most of the people who were there paid their good money just to see Lillian Russell in person. It was worth the price. A vision in poiret green velvet, draped over an under-dress of gold lace, and the bodice scintillating with brilliants and rhinestones appeared. Then came a little talk in Miss Russell's well modulated voice and perfect English, in which she declared that growing old was unnecessary—that if we kept our minds right, our bodies would be right; that it was the mental attitude which counted most in the aging process, just as in all other processes.

Laziness is the shortest route to old age, and then she gave a method for keeping young were cleanliness of mind and body, plenty of exercise and proper diet.

Miss Russell gives a matinee today at Symphony Hall at 2:30, and at the same time tomorrow.

PAYS $10 FINE FOR TRAPPING TROUT

MIDDLEBORO, April 2.—The trout fishermen had nothing on Frigitis Gigis as a fisherman and if he had not been caught by Deputy Game Warden Pratt he would have scooped every trout in Purchase Brook, one of the best in this section. Instead of that he was fined $10 for trap fishing by Judge Washburn in the district court. Grigitis had a willow woven trap thirty feet long, which extended from a small dam made with willow sticks and carefully concealed.

BOSTON GIRL GETS THE FIRST SALMON

PORTLAND, Me., April 2.—Miss Dorothy Hoyt of Boston holds the honor of catching the first salmon of the season in Sebago Lake. The fish weighed four pounds. Judge Thomas H. Thompson of Boston got the first land-locked salmon.

With Admiral Eaton in War Against Spain

The AMERICAN today publishes the third chapter of a serial story dealing with Admiral Eaton's experiences in the Spanish-American War. Nothing of equal interest has yet appeared in this case. A chapter will be published each day during the run of the story.

By LIEUT. B. B. McG.

A companion in arms of Admiral Eaton, Copyright, 1913, by American, Journal, Examiner. All rights reserved.

In yesterday's instalment of the serial "Admiral Eaton in the War With Spain" was told the narrow escape of the Oregon and the Resolute, which came near colliding outside Santiago harbor. Had the two vessels met, as many aboard both ships thought was inevitable, both would have been sent to the bottom with a frightful loss of life, the fleet under Admiral Sampson would have been demoralized and there might have been a different outcome of the Battle of Santiago.

THE Resolute, in command of Captain Eaton, with a detail of New Jersey naval militia, left Newport on the morning of May 27, 1898, under orders for Newport News, Va.

The vessel, which was to be used as a supply and ammunition ship, having been converted from one of the coastwise steamers of the Old Dominion Line, had put off her holiday dress and been dressed in the sombre state of war paint. She could hardly be distinguished at a distance on the surface of the water.

One must remember that at this time all the papers of the country were carrying headlines announcing the huge Spanish fleet had been reported steaming to demolish the Eastern seaboard. Wealthy residents who frequent our Atlantic seaboard during the Summer months had changed their plans and decided to go into the country.

Reservations for suites at the larger and more expensive Summer hotels along the coast had been cancelled. Business men in the seaboard cities, many of them, were waiting with fear and trembling, to be certain as to the strength of the fleet and fearing it would swing out of the gray mists of the sea some morning and pour its deathdealing leaden hail into the canons of New York's business streets or along Washington street, Boston.

The pronouncess the country over had its effect on the untried sailors of the naval reserve. At the officers' ports the crews had eagerly read the latest war news and what was not grossly exaggerated was added to their perfervid imaginations.

The crew of the Resolute was keen on watching for passing sails. Very few vessels were seen and the general uncertainty had caused a failing off in the coastwise trade, owners not caring to risk their less precious cargoes to serve as prizes for the pride of the Spanish Main.

Off For War Scene.

At those times, when a steamer was picked up with the glasses, speculation would run rife among the crew and many of the officers as to whether we would be able to outsteam her and run to safety or be forced to sink her with our six-pounders. And all the time there was present the knowledge that one little spark beneath our decks would turn loose thousands of pounds of deadly explosives, enough to blow us all to Kingdom Come.

Common sense told us it was foolish for a ship loaded as we were to engage in battle even with a captain's gig and that to run was the only sensible course possible. But we had neither to run nor fight and on the thirty-first we steamed into the waters which had seen the battle of the Monitor and the Merrimac, past the old Spanish rip raps and down through Hampton Roads to the yard at Portsmouth.

We hurried coaling, took on some fresh water and 131 apprentice boys and were off again the same day for the real scene of war.

For the next few days out we saw not a single sail of any description. One of the officers said to me: "Do you know where we are going?" I replied, I thought we were bound for Key West, whence Sampson and his fleet had sailed for Cuba. "We are!" he said, laughing. "We're bound for the Male St. Nicholas, where we are to meet one of Sampson's dispatch boats."

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

POLICE THINK FOSTER'S WHARF FIRE WAS SET

An investigation was begun today into the origin of the $5,000 fire in the five-story brick block at Nos. 366 to 370 Atlantic avenue, situated on Foster's wharf, which the police now suspect was set by firebugs.

This is the same building in which there was a three-alarm fire, four months ago.

Special Officer Carey of Station 2 is making the inquiry, following information furnished by Officers Ivers and Farrell of the same station, who say that about two hours before the fire started they saw two men standing in the doorway.

When the men came out of the doorway they started to walk toward the policemen, then turned and walked quickly away, disappearing into a side street.

Two hours later, as Officers Ivers and Farrell were talking with Sergeant Clifford, they saw smoke issuing from the first floor of the block.

The blaze started on the third floor occupied by C. H. Francis, manufacturer of patterns and models, and spread through the fourth and fifth floor to the roof. Hoseman Wiegand of Engine 7 and his right hand badly cut by falling glass.

Thirty guests at the Hotel Rossmore, across the street, were awakened. Night Clerk James Foley sent George Young, the watchman, through the corridors telling the guests they were in no danger.

The fire was a spectacular one and the flames bursting from the windows on the three upper floors illuminated the waterfront. The crew of Engine 7 directing a stream of water from a ladder, came near being enveloped when flames burst from the window on the third floor and burned away the top of the ladder.

SWEETLAND ASKS REINSTATEMENT

Samuel J. Sweetland, seeking reinstatement as a member of the Boston Police Department, has spent two days testifying before the Committee on Public Service. He is charged with robbing a drunken prisoner. His answer is a general denial.

EVA BLOOM, twenty-year-old immigrant girl, whose charge that she was lured to home of South End woman, police are investigating.

Investigate Case of Immigrant Girl Lured by Woman

Policemen of the South End and Roxbury Divisions are investigating the case of Eva Bloom, twenty years old, of Dunkeld street, Grove Hall, as a result of her charge that she was lured to the home of a woman in the South End.

Miss Bloom came to this country from Russia about six months ago, making her home with her brother. Monday afternoon she left home to visit some friends in South Boston. Losing her way and asking to be directed, she says she became acquainted with a woman, to whose home she was taken, passing Monday night and the greater part of Tuesday there.

ROCKEFELLER GIFT STILL IN DOUBT

NEW YORK, April 2.—The "Three Million Dollar Campaign Committee" of the American Baptist Home Mission Society is not yet certain whether it will receive the $1,000,000 gift from John D. Rockefeller. The stipulation Mr. Rockefeller made was that by April 1 it should have received $250,000 more from "contributors than the society received in the year ending April 1, 1912. It will be several days before it is known if the condition had been fulfilled.

ELINOR GLYN IN AMERICAN NEXT SUNDAY

Guinevere Bohun's attraction for Sir Hugh Dremont following the wife's grand-ual alienation from her crabbed husband formed the vital element in Elinor Glyn's story "1905; Guinevere's Lover," another instalment of which appears in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

Guinevere's attraction and that of Sir Hugh has ripened into love. The complications of this situation begin to unravel. Heart interest predominates and yet all the elements of a well written romance run through the chapters.

The story, like "Three Weeks," the passionate love romance with which the notable English authoress startled the world of fiction readers, is replete with the strong, sentient lore element whereby Elenour Glyn has become endeared to the lover of a good story.

"1905; Guinevere's Lover," holds you from start to finish.

Don't forget—in the magazine of the next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN, which is filled from cover to cover with other fascinating and entertaining stories as well.

WEARING BATHROBE, FALLS 3 STORIES

WORCESTER, April 2.—William J. Thompson, thirty-two, of No. 32 Ames street, fell from the third story of his home here, and is at the City Hospital with injuries to his back and with a bruised right hip. Thompson was about to retire, and was clad only in a bathrobe. He fell twenty-four feet and struck on a granolithic walk. He can give no explanation of how he came to fall.

Pierce's Corn Plasters

are thin and handy to use—th..y're sure and effective, too

Unlike sticky, clumsy felt plasters, Pierce's Corn Plasters do not cause uncomfortable rubbing and pressure on the shoe. And they remove corns where all other plasters, salves or powders fail. The first application gives instant relief. Try one box. If you aren't satisfied with results, tell the druggist—he'll hand you back your money.

10c and 25c a box. Sold by most druggists. But if you cannot conveniently buy them in your neighborhood, send a dime for a small size box to A. P. Pierce Co., Springfield, Mass.

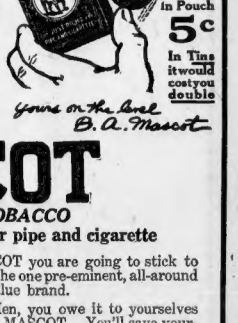
MEN—I've got faith enough in MASCOT to guarantee it. Read this:

I have just put on the market the newest idea that ever hit the tobacco business.

It is my high-grade, ten-cent-quality tobacco, called MASCOT. I sell it for 5 cents. I can afford to do this because I put up MASCOT in an inexpensive cloth pouch, instead of a costly (and useless) tin box. MASCOT is made of just as pure high-grade, extra choice Burley leaves as any tobacco on the market—regardless of price.

If I can persuade you to try MASCOT I am sure you will agree with me that every statement I make about my tobaccco is strictly on the level.

Men, I want you to go to your dealer today and buy a pouch of



MASCOT

CRUSHED CUT TOBACCO

There was never one like it—for pipe and cigarette

Smoke half of it and if you don't find it fully up to any claim I ever made for it—

Mail that half-a-pouch back to me (B. A. Mascot, 111 Fifth Avenue, New York City) and I will return you your money plus the postage.

I've got faith enough in my good, new tobacco and in your judgment of good tobacco, to feel sure that once you get started smoking MASCOT you are going to stick to it, as the one pre-eminent, all-around big value brand.

Men, you owe it to yourselves to try MASCOT. You'll save yourselves a lot of money and you'll get high-class smoke-satisfaction.

Those are the plain facts in my whirlwind MASCOT success; and above is my unvarnished offer and guarantee.

In Pouch 5c—in Tins it would cost you double 5¢

MISS WARD SET FREE ON ORDER OF PRESIDENT

President Woodrow Wilson. It was learned today, personally ordered the release of Miss Florence Weld Ward, the English militant suffragette, detained since last Monday by the Boston immigration authorities on the ground that she was "an undesirable."

This is according to information received from Washington, although the actual telegraph order effecting Miss Ward's release bore the signature of Assistant Secretary Charles P. Neill, Secretary Wilson of the Bureau of Commerce and Labor not being at this time in Washington.

Miss Ward, when Mrs. Teresa Crowley, legal counsel for the Boston suffragists, informed her she was free to go where she pleased, said:

Wishes She Could Stay Here

I am so glad! I cannot begin to tell how pleased I am with what my Boston suffragist friends have done for me.

I wish I could stay right here in Boston and thank everyone personally who had a hand in securing my release. Only my positive engagement to deliver an address in Ithaca, N. Y., prevents my doing so.

Miss Ward was detained here on the ground that she had committed a crime involving moral turpitude in participating in the English militants' window-smashing campaign for votes for women. She was jailed for breaking windows.

The local authorities were planning to change the charge to one that she was liable to become a public charge, when the telegraphic order came for her release.

Miss Crowley's story of the Ward case is here told in her own words:

Miss Crowley's Story.

My aid as legal counsel for the Boston suffragists was first called for in Miss Ward's behalf last Monday. I immediately looked up the facts in the case. As a result, I was able at 3 o'clock that afternoon to telegraph Secretary Wilson's office at Washington, informing him of what I had learned, and insisting that Miss Ward be at once set free.

I left word with Commissioner Billings to let me know by telephone just as soon as there were any new developments in the situation.

It did not take them long at the national capital to decide that Miss Ward was unjustly held. I was appraised over the wire that her release had been ordered, and went at once to Long Wharf to meet her.

Wholesome Woman.

She met me with a smile. She is a delightful woman. While detained, she made friends with everyone with whom she came in contact. She is one of the most wholesome, pleasant women I have ever had the good fortune to meet. We have found her invariably patient under the most disagreeable conditions.

Personally I do not see how Uncle Sam could have reached any other decision than that I was right in my contention that Miss Ward's alleged English offences did not involve moral turpitude.

Of course it means that English militants hereafter will be free to go and come in the United States without fear of being detained by the immigration officials.

While Miss Ward was obliged to make a hurried departure in order to catch an early train for Ithaca, she expressed the hope that she would be able to speak here in Boston at some later date.

With one of the immigration station when Miss Ward was told of the decision was her friend Mrs. Jordan, who represented Professor D. F. Morse of Cornell University, whose wife is a relative of Miss Ward.

MISS FLORENCE WELD WARD, English suffragette, who was detained by the Boston immigration authorities as an "undesirable," but who has been released.

Miss Ward's Release Followed an Appeal to Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor by Suffragists of Boston.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL AIDS GASSON FUND

Cardinal O'Connell made known to the executive committee of the Alumni Association of Boston College that he approved starting a fund to be presented to Father Gasson, prior to the laying of the cornerstone of the new Boston College, and added that he would head the subscription list with a donation of $1,000.

Swears Woman Paid Him $1,000 to Leave Town

RUTLAND, Vt., April 2.—A dramatic moment occurred in the trial of Benjamin T. Howland of Brandon, held on the charge of extorting money from Mrs. James H. Wheldon, when the defendant asserted he had received $1,000 from Mrs. Wheldon to leave Brandon. Howland, it is charged, said he would circulate stories about the plaintiff.

Howland declared that Mrs. Wheldon gave him the $1,000 of her free will. He told the jury he had done carpenter work at the Wheldon house and he identified written messages received from Mrs. Wheldon. Mrs. Wheldon, he said, paid him at first $100, meeting him on the street in the evening, after which, he said, he went away, according to his agreement, and then returned and received the other $900.

RUSSIA'S PLEA SAVES SCUTARI FROM SHELLING

VIENNA, April 2.—A Central News dispatch from St. Petersburg this afternoon states that the Russian government has persuaded Montenegro to cease bombarding Scutari until tomorrow.

Several of the Turkish forts on the northeast side of Scutari have been reduced to ruins and fire is burning in the city in several places.

The defiant attitude of Montenegro, the smallest kingdom in Europe, defying the ultimatum of the Powers presents a spectacle seldom seen in European history.

Montenegro has arrayed against her the armies and navies of the Triple Entente and the Triple Alliance composed respectively of England, France and Russia and Germany, Austria and Italy.

Montenegro has an area of about 3,600 square miles and an army of 50,000 men.

The strength of the Powers trying to coerce Montenegro in area and armies follows:

POWER.	AREA IN SQ. MILES.	ARMY STRENGTH.
Great Britain	11,000,000	196,782
France	5,000,000	715,000
Russia	8,000,000	1,352,000
Germany	1,000,000	2,540,000
Austria	262,000	346,000
Italy	110,650	240,111

In this estimate the territorial possessions were not counted in some instances, nor are the colonial troops or reservists figured in the army strength.

A great international fleet is gathered in the Adriatic Sea off Antivari, Montenegro's only port, for an imposing display of naval strength, Montenegro has no navy.

The Montenegrins are a hardy race of mountaineers and their monarch, King Nicholas, a man of the greatest courage. One of his daughters is Queen of Italy, another is a Russian grand duchess.

Britain Sends Warships.

LONDON, April 2.—Announcement from the Admiralty was read in Parliament today to the effect that Great Britain is sending two warships to join the International fleet in the Adriatic, which is making a hostile demonstration against Montenegro.

N. H. DEMOCRATS TO CELEBRATE WITH HOLLIS TO-NIGHT

CONCORD, N. H., April 2.—The recent election of Henry F. Holl's to the United States Senate will be celebrated tonight by New Hampshire Democrats. Hundreds of persons who intend to participate in the celebration will come to this city in special trains.

Arrangements have been made for two mass meetings and a parade. A message written by Secretary of State William J. Bryan will be read at the meetings. The speakers include United States Senator Charles F. Johnson of Maine, Lieutenant-Governor David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, Congressman William F. Murray of Massachusetts, and Raymond B. Stevens and Governor Samuel D. Felker of this State.

Asylum Forgot the Red Tape, Hurried Doctor for Stork

This is the story of how Mr. Stork—well known all over Boston, except in the "childless" Back Bay—raced against all the red tape of trying to get a doctor at night and won out.

The result is that today there is a "bouncing baby" girl in the home of Mrs. Sarah Scott, No. 3 Pine Grove terrace, Roxbury.

The Scott family had arranged with a Dispensary for a physician to attend the mother-to-be. Then about midnight came the announcement which necessitated the use of a telephone. The dispensary did not respond to the calls. A neighbor tried the City Hospital and was informed that the hospital did not send physicians out. No request was made for an ambulance. Then physicians were called, but without success.

Then the wee baby girl arrived. Later a physician was secured at the St. Mary's Infant Asylum, which responded to the first call for help made to it. The doctor found mother and daughter were "doing well." The baby girl is Mrs. Scott's eighth child.

POPE RECEIVES THREE AMERICANS

ROME, April 2.—Pope Pius has held an audience, at which many prominent Americans were presented by Mgr. Thomas F. Kennedy, rector of the American College in Rome. The Rev. James A. Burns, Superior President and Professor of Moral Theology at Holy Cross College, Worcester, was among those presented.

SHERIFF GUARD FOR ADDICKS IN HUB MAN'S SUIT

NEW YORK, April 2.—Following his appearance in court here on a "body attachment" pursuant to a year-old order to appear for examination to discover property to enable Hiram M. Burton of Boston to collect judgment on a promissory note for about $20,000, J. Edward Addicks, former Bay State Gas magnate and one time associate of Thomas Lawson of Boston, was at large in get counsel—but in company with Sheriff Donohue, who has been ordered to stick closer than a brother to Addicks.

Addicks appeared in court meekly attired. Attorney David Walsh declared that he had been trying to catch Addicks for more than a year. "This morning we found him coming out of an apartment next to the Y. M. C. A.," he said.

Justice Newburger asked what Addicks' counsel had to say.

"Why," gasped Mr. Addicks, "I didn't think any counsel was necessary. There isn't any legal judgment against me for the alleged $20,000. They got judgment by default on some perjured affidavits of service. I didn't think I ought to have a lawyer for such a trumped-up case."

"Well," remarked Justice Newburger, "I should advise you to procure counsel so that he may prepare papers to vacate the judgment by default. Otherwise I shall have to order you to jail and fix the bail at $2,000."

ıoods Send Meat Prices to Highest Points in Years

Prices of beef, mutton and lamb today will reach the highest point attained in years. Floods in Ohio and Indiana have caused a shortage in meats which will not be remedied until checked shipments reach the city.

The retail prices on ribs of beef is 25 to 30 cents a pound; sirloin of beef, 32 cents; sirloin steak, 32 to 35 cents; rump steak, 45 cents; tenderloin, 50 cents; leg and loins of lamb, 22 cents; forequarters, 15 cents; rib lamb chops, 25 cents; kidney lamb chops, 25 cents; roast pork, 22 to 25 cents; and pork chops, 25 cents.

Sincere Statement From Reliable Citizen

Your window display in the store of Mr. E. J. Sweeney here reminded me that my family owed a debt of gratitude to your wonderful preparation for kidney trouble.

A few years ago my wife suffered from a general breakdown in health. She was troubled continually with backache and suffered severely from nervousness and loss of appetite.

We tried several preparations and had the services of different physicians who prescribed for her, but she could not obtain any permanent relief from their treatment.

At the time, I was connected with the drug business and had heard so many people speak highly of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, that I resolved to try it.

My wife had only been taking it a short time when she felt much improved. We continued its use for some time until she felt entirely well and was a hundred per cent. better in every way.

Since that time she has had no return of the trouble. We always keep Swamp-Root in the house and find it a wonderful tonic, as well as a great kidney medicine.

We want to thank you sincerely for the benefits derived from its use and shall never hesitate to recommend it to our friends. Yours very truly,

W. S. FRY.
Pottstown, Pa.

Affirmed to before me, a Justice of the Peace in and for Montgomery County, and State of Pennsylvania, this 4th day of May, 1912.

CAIRO'S HOPE IN LEVEES AND FALLING RIVER

CAIRO, Ill., April 2.—With half the population of this city having fled, and many hundreds more fleeing or preparing to do so, those who are left are working night and day to hold back the Ohio River.

Debris in the streets of Columbus still baffles the rescuers in their fight to recover the bodies of those who were victims of the flood. Eight more bodies in the morgues bring the death total today to seventy-one, in that city.

Governor Cox of Ohio today presented to the Relief Committee, which met at Columbus, a plan for a tour of inspection throughout the flooded section of the State.

It is now said that $40,000,000 will be immediately needed for relief work. The government will be asked for a loan for this amount, and bankers and building associations have agreed to put up the necessary collateral. The damage today is placed at $150,000,000.

The government gauge at 6:30 a. m. today registered a stage of 54.1 feet, an increase of one-fourth of a foot since 10 o'clock last night. The levees separating Cairo from the river on two sides and the flooded drainage district on the other was still holding. A strong wind was lashing the waves against the barriers of sand bags piled on top of the concrete walls.

It is thought that the crest of the flood is nearly reached and that the river will begin to fall before the day is far spent.

Wire early today destroyed several small structures in Mound City, Ill., eight miles from here. When the first glare of the blaze was seen here two companies of firemen and several State troops were sent from Cairo. They extinguished the fires and returned before daylight. Fire burned for nearly an hour in the flooded drainage district, north of Cairo.

CAMBRIDGE COUPLE THIRTY YEARS WED

Thirty of the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Conway made a surprise visit at their home at No. 12 Day street, North Cambridge. It was the couple's thirtieth wedding anniversary. There was a very pleasant entertainment for the evening, and many gifts in honor of the event. Mr. Conway has been for many years in the bookkeeping department of Catlin & Co., Boston.

QUESTION HANOVER CHOPPER'S SANITY

When William Hamilton, a wood chopper charged by the police with terrorizing Hanover and Norwell people by threatening them with an axe, was arraigned in Rockland today, Deputy Sheriff John Condon asked the court to have the prisoner examined to determine whether he is sane.

GO TO SHOW TONIGHT FOR FLOOD FUND

There will be a "humanity" entertainment at Tremont Temple tonight, the proceeds from which will be devoted to the "humanity tax" fund which the Boston AMERICAN and other Hearst papers have organized for the Western flood sufferers.

The fund grows day by day and it is expected that tonight's attendance at Tremont Temple will add to it materially.

Edward H. Hesser will show his famous pictures in kinemacolor of the Balkan war and the Panama Canal. A number of vaudeville artists from local theatres will contribute.

The program will be both amusing and educational, one of the most interesting ever arranged in Boston. When it is considered that all the receipts will be added to the "humanity tax" fund, to help the flood sufferers, then the public may well feel able to spend a little money for entertainment and charity combined.

How You Can Help.

If you want to have a pleasant evening and help the flood victims at the same time, just buy your ticket for Tremont Temple tonight and be in your seat when the fun begins.

Meanwhile the "humanity tax" fund is daily swelling. There is no need to tell over again the urgent necessity of immediate help for the flood sufferers.

The Boston AMERICAN Relief Bureau, No. 5 Winthrop square, will handle the contributions and guarantee no delays.

AMERICAN OPENS BUREAUS TO HELP FLOOD SUFFERERS

The Boston AMERICAN has opened Relief Bureaus here and in Dayton and the stricken area.

Every person in Boston willing to contribute relief of any kind—food, medicine, clothing, shoes or other useful articles, is invited to prepare all such donations for delivery.

In this respect the AMERICAN places itself at the disposal of the public officials of the stricken district and the merchats of Boston.

As quickly as supplies are contributed they will be shed to the Field Branches of The Relief Bureau and disused among the needy. The AMERICAN desires only new cles of wearing apparel because of the great difficulties attant upon the handling of old clothing.

RED CROSS CALLS FOR MONEY TO RELIEVE SUFFERERS BY FLOOD

Although the work of rescue and temporary relief in the stricken flood districts of Ohio and Indiana is now almost completed, in a few days the enormously more expensive and equally important work of restoring many thousands of flood sufferers to a condition in which they may be set on their feet again will begin.

Gardiner M. Lane, treasurer of the Massachusetts Branch of the Red Cross Society, today received by telegraph from General George W. Davis, chairman, a statement of the situation and a report of the work done. The operations to date have been confined to rescuing people from their perilous positions and providing temporary shelter for them.

While the loss of life has been found much smaller than at first was reported, the loss in homes, furniture, clothes and business is all that has been pictured, and the demand upon the relief funds will be very great. The Red Cross now has 100 nurses and experienced relief agents in service or en route to work assigned. Red Cross headquarters have been established in the State House, Columbus, Ohio.

General Davis urges that relief funds intended for the Red Cross be placed in the hands of the national treasurer in order that he may draw upon him for the amounts needed.

CLAIM UNION MEN ORDERED TO BREAK PAINTERS' STRIKE

A general protest, signed by the Boston Independent Painters' Union, was sent today to all Boston trade unions, alleging that American Federation of Labor painters' Union 11, were sent by the officers of Boston A. F. of L. Painters' district council 41 "to act as strike-breakers" at six of the affected shops.

About fifteen firms, one the largest of all, and the others smaller ones, have settled with the union. Their hands will return to work today.

Painters have also gone on strike in Marlboro, Pawtucket, Chicago and Kansas City. Their demands are approximately for a 10 per cent. increase.

Judges Tied, Whipple Seeks New Hearing

Attorney Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for Joseph A. Hurd of Lynn, who has a suit in equity over a right of way against the General Electric Company, will today ask for a rehearing of the case in the Supreme Court. The case had a rare outcome when the full bench failed to agree, two judges holding one view and two another.

Four judges heard the case, three being debarred from sitting because they were stockholders in the defendant company.

Attorney Whipple now declares he is willing to have the three sit with the other four, insisting he fears no prejudice on account of their stock ownership.

Hurd's bill was for an injunction to restrict the company from encroaching on or closing the southerly end of Pitkin street, Lynn, through which the complainants claimed a right of way.

"Go to College Young," Lowell's Word to Students

President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard believes in entering marriage early. Now comes President Lowell of the college with the declaration: "It is better for a boy to enter college when he is sixteen years old than later."

President Lowell, in addressing the Andover Academy Alumni Association, at the Boston City Club, ridiculed the idea that a boy may hurt himself by too close an application to study, or that a youngster is apt to go wrong if he leaves home too young.

Cause of Eczema Now Explained

Is there an incurable form of Eczema? Some say there is, but the best skin specialists are now agreed that the only skin disease that resists a cure is not genuine Eczema, but an inherited disease; and even that, they believe, will generally yield to D. D. D. Prescription.

We ourselves will not absolutely promise you a cure. But we do know that the simple, cooling wash, D. D. D. Prescription, applied to the skin has cured a number of people in this town, and, as it seems, they are permanently cured. At any rate, this D. D. D. Prescription certainly does take the itch away. This you can prove to your own satisfaction in five minutes, for all you need to do is to rub a bit into the skin and the itch just goes away.

A five bottle proves it. And the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago, knowing how some people hesitate after having tried many remedies, make this offer: Get a full-size bottle of D. D. D. Prescription from your druggist on the understanding that it's no pay if not satisfactory to you. And you are to judge.

Ask also about D. D. D. Soap.

WILSON TARIFF PUTS SUGAR ON THE FREE LIST

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The tariff bill that will be submitted to the House (sacrs Saturday has been agreed upon by President Wilson and Mr. Underwood, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

The bill carries a 15-cent duty on wool and puts sugar on the free list.

The latter provision is an ornamental flourish. Both the President and Mr. Underwood know that a bill admitting sugar free has not the ghost of a show to get through the Senate.

Princess Louise Loses Battle for Leopold's Millions

BRUSSELS, April 2.—Princess Louise, eldest daughter of the late King Leopold of Belgium, and known as "the greatest spender among the princesses of Europe," today lost her suit for the millions left by Leopold.

The Appeal Court handed down a decision rejecting the claims of Princess Louise and ordered that the enormous estate left by King Leopold revert to the State.

Leopold and Princess Louise were estranged at the time of the King's death because of Louise's notorious escapades.

A few years after her marriage, Princess Louise eloped with Lieutenant Matschich of the Austrian army and lived openly with him without taking the trouble to get a divorce.

MORGAN'S BODY LEAVES ROME FOR FRANCE

ROME, April 2.—In the room where the body has lain since the death of John Pierpont Morgan, surrounded by masses of flowers, tributes from friends and noted personages of all parts of the world, a simple funeral service was held today for America's greatest financier.

Only the relatives and intimate friends of the family, including the American Ambassador, Thomas J. O'Brien, and Mrs. O'Brien, were present at the ceremony, which was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Nelson of the American Church.

Those who were present were deeply affected by the touching ceremony, the last honor afforded the banker on foreign soil.

On the request of Ambassador O'Brien, the Italian government immediately granted all the necessary concessions to have the body of Mr. Morgan leave at 6:15 tonight (about noon New York time) on an express train, which will reach the Simplon Tunnel tomorrow morning. Thence the body will be taken through Switzerland and France to Havre, where it will be placed on board a steamship bound for New York.

Leaving Rome, the coffin will occupy a special car draped with black and silver fringe. Next to the funeral car will be attached a sleeping car for Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee.

The transportation of the coffin from the hotel to the station in Rome will be absolutely private.

Flags Are Lowered.

During the funeral it became known throughout the city that the rites were being conducted, and while hundreds stood outside the hotel in an endeavor to gain a last look at the principal personages in the scene, another honor was accorded Mr. Morgan in the lowering of flags generally throughout the city.

Messages of condolence continued to pour in from Europe and America, among sympathetic telegrams from King Victor Emmanuel, Pope Pius, President Poincare of France, Kaiser Wilhelm, and others.

Although Ambassador O'Brien had offered the services and use of the American Embassy for the funeral, his offer was declined by the family, according to Mr. Satterlee, because it was preferred that no outward show should be made at this time.

The Episcopal service was used, omitting the word "committal."

A memorial service will be held in Avon, and the record of his death will be preserved in the municipal archives.

At the funeral all the royal houses of Europe were represented. The Duke of Teck represented King George of England and one of the sons of Kaiser Wilhelm was among the representatives present.

The death certificate filed with the government health bureau merely related that Mr. Morgan had died from a disease not contagious.

Mayor Nathan of Rome called at the Grand Hotel and extended the sympathy of the city to Mr. Satterlee. Mr. Morgan and Mr. Nathan were warm personal friends.

It is learned that Mr. Morgan's mind first gave signs of weakening on the Monday following Easter Sunday. While propped up in bed being shaved he turned to his valet and asked:

"Where shall I sleep?"

This showed that his mind was wandering. He never left his bed.

OLD ALTAR PIECE THE LAST ART PIECE BOUGHT BY MORGAN

NEW YORK, April 2.—The last picture purchased by Mr. Morgan was, as told in the American, the altar piece by Filippo Lippi. He bought it from the Duveen Bros. for $400,000 just two days before he sailed for Egypt. It is included in the loan exhibit now at the Metropolitan, but was received too late to be included in the catalogue.

The painting is in three panels, the centre one representing St. Lawrence enthroned, with St. Cosmo and Damian on either side, and the donors kneeling in front. St. Anthony is shown in the right panel and St. Benedict in the left.

This is the work referred to as follows by Vasari in his life of the painter: "Alessandro degli Allesandri, also a friend of Fra Filipo, caused him to paint a picture for the church of his country palace at Vincigliati, on the heights of Fiesole. The subject is San Lorenzo and other saints. In this work he depicted the portraits of Alessandri and his two sons."

"CASCARETS" THE BEST LAXATIVE

No Headache, Biliousness, Constipated Bowels or Sour Stomach by Morning.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable and uncomfortable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish intestines—you always get the desired results with Cascarets, and quickly too.

Don't let your stomach, liver, and bowels make you miserable. Take Cascarets tonight; put an end to the headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, backache and all other distress; cleanse your inside organs of all the bile, gases and constipated matter which is producing the misery.

A 10-cent box means health, happiness and a clear head for months. No more days of sickness and distress if you will take a Cascaret now and then. All druggists sell Cascarets. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

T. R.'S HOME DISTRICT GOES DEMOCRATIC

NEW YORK, April 2.—Town elections in Oyster Bay, North Hempstead and Hempstead, Nassau County, resulted in victories for the Democratic candidates for Supervisor in the first-named two towns, and the Republican candidate in Hempstead. In Theodore Roosevelt's home election district the Progressives ran second to the Democrats.

PRAYER uttered at the Funeral Services of J. PIERPONT MORGAN, by the Rev. R. F. Nelson, Minister-in-Charge of St. Paul's American Episcopal Church, Rome, today.

MERCIFUL God and heavenly Father, who hast taught us in thy holy Word that thou dost not willingly afflict or grieve the children of men; look with pity, we beseech thee, upon the sorrows of thy servants, for whom our prayers are desired.

In thy wisdom thou hast seen fit to visit them with trouble and to bring distress upon them. Remember them, O Lord, in mercy, sanctify thy fatherly correction to them, endue their souls with patience under their affliction, and with resignation to thy blessed will; comfort them with a sense of thy goodness; lift up thy countenance upon them and give them peace; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

POISON TEST ON TODAY IN DEATH OF BRIDE, 73

To determine whether Mrs. Emily Wattstill McGovern of South Peabody, seventy-three, who proposed to and was married to Michael McGovern, twenty-six years her junior, a few months ago, was poisoned, her vital organs were today sent for examination to Professor W. F. Whitney at the Harvard Medical School.

Medical Examiner H. K. Foster of Peabody, following an autopsy which revealed nothing of a suspicious nature, decided on this course, acting under direction of District Attorney H. C. Atwill of Lynn, who had been informed that the woman died under circumstances demanding investigation.

Mrs. McGovern, before her property, valued at $6,500, to her husband. The marriage took place December 31 of last year, but first became known in January when a petition was brought by Mrs. McGovern's niece, Mrs. Fred L. Day of Wyoma, to show why a conservator should not be appointed.

McGovern today declared his wife had willed all the property because "she didn't want her relatives to get a cent of it." He declared:

"I came from Providence, where I lived twenty-five years or so, and we... to work for Warren & Tolay of Boston, real estate dealers. In this way I met my wife, who was then Mrs. Brown. Her maiden name was Emily Wattstill Lane, and she was a native of Dexter, Me. Her first husband was Augustus R. Brown.

"I interested her in a piece of property, sold it to her and she built this house. From then on she sought my help in several business transactions.

"During all this time she frequently asked me to marry her. She said that she had relatives who were eager to grasp her property, and she wanted someone to look after her interests and to keep her from being lonesome.

"All the time the nieces and relatives had objected to our friendship. Then came the petition for her to appear in the Probate Court last January. We talked the matter over and decided to get married.

Beauty Doctor Tells Secret

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp diseases, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair.

Salesman Staggered, But Sticks to Job and Sells the Lady Diamonds in 15 Minutes

Nena Blake, the pretty actress who is playing the leading role in "Ready Money" at the Majestic Theatre, sent a ripple of excitement through the store of Jason Weiler & Sons, 365 Washington street, yesterday morning, and for several minutes upset the usually imperturbable head salesman by walking into the store and calmly announcing that she wanted to spend $2,500 in a great rush.

"Will you please hasten," said Miss Blake, sweetly, "because I am in a dreadful hurry and don't want to waste a minute."

It is not the way diamonds are usually sold and the astonished salesman promptly gasped for breath.

"You see," continued Miss Blake, "I have heard of your store from a friend in Chicago—she has been a customer here—and as I need a few bits of smart jewelry I am going to follow her advice. Now, please hurry."

"But it takes time to examine diamonds," protested Mr. Brunelle, one of the expert diamond salesmen.

"Oh, I'll do that all right," was the response, and before the salesman recovered from his surprise Miss Blake had selected nearly $2,500 worth of rare gems, set in pins and rings.

"I think that will be enough," she announced. "And now you must pardon me, for I have another engagement." And she was gone.

Miss Blake had spent just fifteen minutes in the store.

Secret Club Gives Dance Tonight But Doesn't Give Secret

Listen:

The club with the mysterious name, composed of a bevy of pretty Dorchester girls who have resisted successfully all efforts to solve the name of their organization and proved that girls can keep a secret, the F. E. F. C. Club, is to have a dancing party at Dorchester Club, Talbot avenue, Dorchester, tonight.

Their young men friends say that tonight the name of the club will be secret no longer. Finding their attempts to fasten on the club the derisive name of the "Fried Eels and Fried Cod" Club could not disturb their girl friends, they have determined to be diplomatic tonight and solve the mystery.

"They will never be able to do it," said Miss Anna Daley, the club's president. "If they get too insistent we shall have the matron to suspect us. That will be Mrs. Pow, Mrs. McGloughlin and Mrs. Helen Carty.

Heartburnings at Capitol Over the 'Welcome' Feast

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Women leaders in social and official life are at their wits' end today over the problem of the invitations for the "National Welcome Breakfast" that will be given for Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall Saturday noon.

The banquet hall arranged for the event will accommodate 350 guests. The "Blue Book" contains the names of more than 1,200 eligibles, and already there are heart burdings and jealousies.

The feeling has broken out openly among the women who are recognized. The National Democratic Women's League has already announced that it would not be represented at the banquet because the seating space accorded it was not sufficient for its members. There are other defections.

CULTURED PEOPLE DREAM THE MOST, SAYS DR. PERCY

"The dream is the lightest form of sleep, and the most intellectual are the most inclined to dreams. Nightmares are almost invariably dependent upon some disturbance of nerve centres," according to Dr. Frederick B. Percy, professor of clinical medicine at Boston University School of Medicine. In a lecture at Evans Memorial, he said:

"It is perfectly possible to injure the health by taking too much sleep. The least cultured need the most sleep. In the taking of drugs to induce sleep there is a real danger."

MOOSERS LAUNCH FALL CAMPAIGN WITH BIRD BOOM

The battle cry of the Massachusetts Bull Moosers was sounded in Ford Hall, when the candidacy of Charles Sumner Bird for next Governor of the Bay State was launched by Leonard Martin of Sharon. He asserted that the Progressives proposed to spend $100,000 to elect a Governor and a Progressive Legislature this Fall.

Mr. Bird and Mrs. Lewis J. Johnson, wife of Professor Johnson of Harvard, spoke. Mrs. Johnson said:

"We need women on the juries, on the bench, in the Legislature, and on the Governor's Council. We want women for policemen, too."

HEAR FRIEND OF VICTIM IN DEATH TRIAL OF FIVE

Antonio Attanna of East Watertown, one of the companions of Francesco Cirillo, killed during L. W. W. strike troubles at Watertown last November, resumed his testimony on the witness stand before Judge Chase at East Cambridge today at the death trial.

The five defendants, all charged with first degree murder, are Vincenzo Ristagno, Tomasso Fitzarle, Luigi Lagaro, Gaetlle Lopero and Francesco Falbo.

MILK TO REMAIN 9 CENTS; DEALERS PAY 4 A QUART

The price of milk will stay at nine cents a quart, though the wholesaler buys at less than four cents, it became known today.

Dr. N. C. Davis of H. P. Hood & Sons said: "Last Winter we advanced the price to producers, but made no advance to the consumer. In order to prevent a sharp advance in the price next Winter present prices to the consumer must be maintained."

MAKES YOUR BACKACHE VANISH, DRIVES RHEUMATIC PAINS AWAY

Eases Stiff, Sore, Swollen Joints and Muscles, Relieving Backache and Bladder Disorders After Few Doses are Taken

This is what Croxone, the new scientific discovery, does for sufferers of such troubles. It promptly relieves these diseases because it reaches the cause. It sinks right into the walls and linings of the kidneys and cleans out the stopped-up, inactive organs like water does a sponge—neutralizes, and dissolves every particle of uric acid and makes the kidneys stiff from the blood all the waste matter and poisons that lodge in the joints and muscles to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism. It soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder and leaves the kidneys in a clean, strong, healthy condition, so they can filter the blood and keep you well.

If you suffer from backache—have pains in the neck or sides—nervous or dizzy spells—a few doses of Croxone will relieve the congestion and you will be surprised how quickly all kidney, bladder and rheumatic troubles will disappear.

Croxone is different from all other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.

THESE girls can keep a secret. They are, reading from the top, Elizabeth Daley, Anna Daley and Isabelle McGloughlin. The name of the club they have organized is still kept from the curious men friends of its members.

MRS. TILTON HELPS POSTER WAR ON LIQUOR

"Our think it over posters are not alone for those who drink, but for everybody," today declared Mrs. Elizabeth Hewes Tilton of Pinckney street, one of the originators of a five-year campaign which has just been begun by the placing of posters in prominent places throughout Boston, marshalling facts aimed against the liquor traffic. She continued:

These posters are for the thinking man. Think! What is the sense of having in the community a narcotic poison which causes anywhere from one-fifth to two-fifths of our insanity?

There are 30,000 people insane through drink in the United States being cared for in our own institutions by your money and my money.

Shows Economic Side.

They say that every man who works is worth nearly $400 a year to his community. One insane person, therefore, means a loss of about $400 a year. Thirty thousand persons mean a loss of twelve millions a year.

We don't allow poisonous milk. We don't allow poisonous canned goods. We make a great time about those, which possibly poison one man in 20,000. Why not do something about a poison that is making 30,000 persons insane, and is going to make 30,000 more persons insane?

Our first poster reads:

One-half of the crimes committed in Massachusetts in one year are due to drink.

Think this over!

Urge People to Think.

The one now in the windows of many business houses is this:

Think this over:
Drink causes
One-fifth of our insanity.
One-fourth of our poverty.
One-half of our crime.
Is this good business?

These posters are meant to teach that you cannot waste, as in days gone by. Can we afford the cost of liquor, a cost that far outweighs any revenue brought in by liquor fees? We just want people to think.

NO MORE CONSTIPATION

It's Me for Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and Calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated tablets.

They cause the bowels and liver to act normal. They never force them to unnatural action.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are so easy to take that children do not regard them as "medicine" at all.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Olive Tablets at bedtime. They're perfectly harmless.

Thousands take one every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box.

CASSIDY TELLS HOW SOME OFFICIALS BLOCK PURE FOOD BY ATTITUDE

Mr. Cassidy today shows how the attitude of the State officials, and some of the local scientific men, is largely responsible for the prevalence of food adulteration in Boston. He accuses the State Board of Health of protecting the rotten egg dealers rather than the public, by the refusal to make public facts as to seizures of rotten eggs. He accuses Professor Earle B. Phelps of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology of misrepresentation of the facts in regard to the federal food law on milk.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

I hope every reader of this paper saw and read the exposure of the State Board of Health which was printed yesterday.

If you did not, let me review the facts.

Certain rotten eggs had been seized by the State officials and destroyed. The owner of those rotten eggs signed a release to the Commonwealth, rather than defend the case in court.

The case was closed, and there was no possibility that justice would be defeated by making public the facts. But the State Board of Health, through its secretary, Dr. Mark W. Richardson, refused to give some important facts in connection with the case to the readers of the AMERICAN.

That instance is typical of the attitude of the State Board. The Board believes something like this:

"Oh yes, it is quite true we are put in here as representatives of the people to protect the people's health. But what we do is no business of the people. It is OUR business. No one has a right to come in here and ask to see the records or to get the facts in any given case."

Publicity Is Needed.

That is the State Board's opinion. AND THAT IS WHY FOOD ADULTERATORS WORK UNCHECKED IN BOSTON.

Let me tell you why.

The State Board of Health could arrest Mr. A, dealer in rotten eggs, every day in the year, and get convictions every time, and collect a $25 fine every time, AND MR. A COULD STILL MAKE MONEY.

Why?

Because, by selling fifteen hundred to two thousand pounds of rotten eggs daily, Mr. A can make a profit of $150 to $200 a day. The $25 fine, if collected every day, would only deplete his profits a little. He could raise his price and get the fine back.

But suppose that Mr. A were arrested once a month, and each time the newspapers printed the facts in the case, and the fact that Mr. A was convicted of selling rotten eggs.

AT THE END OF A YEAR MR. A would be bankrupt.

Fines will not deter food violators. Publicity makes them squirm with anguish.

You housewives and householders who want pure food—you who feel your food is not pure now—who feel that you and your children are being starved by debased and adulterated foods—blame the State Board of Health. If you want a change—CHANGE THE STATE BOARD.

New Facts Daily.

The State Board is largely to blame for conditions. But the blame must be shared by such men as Professor Sedgwick of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Professor Earle B. Phelps of the same institution. Professor Sedgwick, formerly employed by a firm that now faces trial in the federal court on a charge of selling rotten eggs, says ROTTEN EGGS ARE FIT FOR FOOD.

Professor Earle B. Phelps is a lecturer. He attacks Dr. Wiley and myself as "so-called reformers, who by stating half truths, seek to deceive the people."

Professor Phelps treads dangerous ground when he accuses Dr. Wiley or myself of dealing in half truths. THE WHOLE TRUTH ABOUT FOOD ADULTERATION IS TOO MUCH FOR ANY ONE MAN TO TELL. I have been studying food for nine years, and I discover new facts as to food adulterations daily.

But Professor Phelps, in the same lecture quoted above, himself made a statement which was not even half true. It was all false. He said—or is so quoted:

"The federal government takes no cognizance of bacteria in milk."

Professor Phelps is mistaken. The facts are these:

The federal "Notices of Judgment" under the food and drugs law include the records of some sixty or seventy cases where shipments of milk were seized as containing bacteria above the standard fixed by the Federal Government.

Many of these cases are located in Massachusetts and in adjoining states.

Professor Phelps says the government takes no cognizance of bacteria. As a matter of fact, the Federal Government, as these records show, is extremely active in enforcing a bacteria standard.

MRS. DODGE AT DIVORCE TRIAL FALLS IN FAINT

Following a grilling by opposing counsel and Judge King in the Divorce Court today, Mrs. Maud E. Dodge, who is being sued for divorce by her second husband, Frank W. Dodge, swooned. First aid methods failed to revive her, and she was taken in an unconscious state to the Keller Hospital.

Mrs. Dodge, who is a blonde and forty years old, first married George E. Spear of Melrose. They filed cross libels and her husband was granted a divorce.

She resumed her maiden name, Maude E. Young. Then she married Mr. Dodge in Rhode Island and went to live with him in Los Angeles. He alleged in his testimony that she deserted him and made other charges. He further asserted that she married him two months before her first husband's divorce decree became absolute. Dodge also charged that she returned to her mother's home and later was joined there by her first husband, with whom, he alleges, she went to her father's home in Florida until her father's death.

GOTCH IS EASY WINNER IN GO WITH LURICH

KANSAS CITY, April 2.—Frank Gotch retains his supremacy as wrestling champion of the world, defeating George Lurich of Russia here in two straight falls at Convention Hall. Gotch secured the first fall in 18m. 10s. and the second in 5m. 35s.

The first fall was secured by an arm and toe hold, and the second with a head and arm hold.

Gotch appeared much stronger than the Russian, and was the aggressor throughout the match.

About 300 women were among the spectators.

TECH AND TUFTS FRESHIES IN MEET

The Tech freshmen will hold a dual track meet with the Tufts freshmen at Tufts Field on April 10. The institute men have a strong team in the running events, but are weak in the field events. Benson, the fastest man on the cross-country team, Reed and Goerthing, both members of the varsity two-mile relay team, and Adams and Dean, two fast 100-yard men, are relied on to bring in enough firsts to win.

SENIORS VICTORS IN MEDFORD RACE

Ed Mitchell led the senior class to the championship in the interclass cross-country championship, conducted by Medford High, over the Fellaway course. The seniors won the race with thirty-two points. The sophomores were second with eighteen points, the freshmen third with fourteen points, and the juniors last with twelve points. Mitchell finished first with Walter Brown second and Joe Madera third.

Pilgrims at Richmond Today

Pitchers Make Poor Showing

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

RICHMOND, Va., April 2.—The Boston National squad arrived here early today after an all-night's ride from Charlotte, N.C. Stallings' men will play two games here, the first this afternoon and the second tomorrow. They then go to Washington.

The getaway from Charlotte was made in a hurry. The last game with Buffalo was a long-drawn-out affair in which the two managers worked about every man they had on their respective staffs. The Bisons took to Hogue's delivery at the start, and the youngster only lasted two innings. He pitched in the Carolina League last year, and it was at the request of the Charlotte "fans" that Stallings got him in the box.

Thompson, the former Red Sox recruit, who succeeded him, pitched good ball, but the Bisons were four runs ahead when he started, and in the sixth Stallings saw a chance to win the game with some pinch hitters. The scheme worked all right, and when the inning closed the Bostons were two runs ahead.

PILGRIMS LOST GAME IN NINTH.

In the remaining innings they scored three more runs, making a total of eight, and as the Bisons had stopped at four things looked rosy for the Pilgrims. But Dickson, who succeeded Thompson, grew wild in the ninth, and then the Bisons began to hammer him so that five runs came across in a jiffy, winning the game for Buffalo. If ever Stallings had cause to swear, he had it in that last half of the ninth, with eagle eyes. He wanted to get a line on the players Stallings was likely to let go.

Not to Cut Squad Yet.

He spent long evenings at the hotel in Charlotte gathering information and in having protracted conferences with the Boston manager. Stallings would give Clymer absolutely no encouragement as to letting the Buffalo manager have some of his players. Later he told the writer that nothing would be done toward reducing the squad until the players reached New York for the opening of the National League season on April 10.

TRAVIS HAS BEST CARD IN TOURNEY

PINKHURST, N. C., April 2.—Following his 78 of the first round with a card of 73, Walter B. Travis of Garden City, won the gold medal in the 36-hole qualification round of the thirteenth annual United North and South amateur golf championship with a card of 151 and a margin of 13 strokes. H. J. Topping, Greenwich, Ct., and H. K. Kerr, Ekwanok, were tied for second place with 164.

Mitchell Will Be Near Home.

Mitchell's position under Stallings is somewhat peculiar. As explained in these dispatches, Stallings secured him as a helper rather than as a player. Mitchell is thoroughly familiar with the Stallings' style of ball playing. He is expected

HARRY GISSING SURE TO STAR AS COME-BACK

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.

(Quarter-Mile Champion of United States and Canada).

The report that Harry Gissing, the former New York A. C. and Irish-American club athlete, will soon return to the ranks of active competitors in track and field athletics was received with agreeable surprise by athletic followers throughout the country. This report, coming after the announcement of the proposed race between Meredith and Sheppard some time next June, will give athletic lovers in the East an opportunity to see one of the greatest races ever conducted in this country.

Gissing was the only athlete who was ever able to defeat the invincible Peerless Mel Sheppard, when he was at his best. Gissing defeated the former Olympic champion many times. There was not an athlete in the world capable of defeating Gissing indoors when he was competing at the height of his career.

Gissing Was Star Performer.

Gissing could run any distance from 300 yards up to 1,000 yards, but many experts who have seen him perform believe that he could have equalled Maxey Long's record for a quarter of a mile. He won the half-mile National championship in New Orleans in 1910 and the next Winter he equalled the world's indoor record for the 600-yard event when he won the indoor championship for that distance in 1910.

Gissing should be as fast as ever if he trains properly, as he is still only twenty-two years of age. He has laid off from active competition since last June. At that time he prepared for the Olympic tryouts, and as he was not chosen on the regular list of athletes who were to make the trip to Sweden, he retired from the track to devote his time to business. Since then his many friends have prevailed on him to resume training.

Should Be Sensation of Year.

If Harry sticks to his determination to join the ranks of active athletes, he will be one of the greatest point getters for the Irish-American A. C. Many predict that Mel Sheppard will never again be able to run and that the group of younger champions that have come to the front during the past year will be able to easily defeat him.

Gissing, however, has still a great many years to compete and should be the sensation of the outdoor season of 1913 in the middle distance events.

PHILLIES DEFEATED BY MACK'S TEAM

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—True blood in the Spring series between the Athletics and Phillies went to the former, the White Elephants winning by 3 to 0. Wyckoff, the former Bucknell twirler, was the star of the occasion. He not only held the Phillies down to six hits, but also aided materially in the victory of the Athletics by starting batting rallies.

NASH IS BASKETBALL LEADER AT REVERE

Walter Nash, who played forward on the Revere High basketball team last Winter, has been unanimously elected captain for 1914. The Revere High and the Chelsea High School cross-country teams have arranged for a three-mile cross-country run for April 11.

WILLARD AFTER BOUT WITH M'CARTY

LOS ANGELES, April 2.—Jess Willard, the "giant" "white hope," who has been missing for more than two weeks, landed here today and declared he'd changed managers and was now most anxious to get a fight with Luther McCarty or Gunboat Smith for July 4.

RIDER BEATS JONES.

C. E. Rider of Boston defeated Frank Jones of Philadelphia in the National Billiard League three cushion match at the Imperial, last night, 50 to 47. Rider's large run was seven, while Jones' was five.

Smith Battles McKay Tonight

Gunboat Rules Big Favorite

By JACK CONWAY.

FRED McKay, a bishop's son, will try and prove that he is a real "white hope" when he meets "Gunboat" Smith in a ten-round bout in New York tonight. In also McKay is a giant, as he is six feet six inches tall and weighs over 200 pounds, but it takes something besides mere heft and strength to gain success in the ring, and it is claimed that McKay lacks that "something."

McKay, whose real name is cLaughlin, was born in Can da. His fat: was a bishop, but Frederick failed to follow in the footsteps of that pearl-loving old gentleman. Instead, he was a lad who wanted to see the world and make a big fo rune. He has had all of the worldly experiences one could wish for, but he has yet to accumulate any of t gold dust.

The Canadian was at one time a giant in a circus. He looked like a regular mountain of strength when he had on shoes with high heels, and after he had placed a high silk hat on that part of his body with which he is supposed to think.

FRED, however, tired of the circus life and decided to try and win fame and everlasting glory as a knight of the order of the padded mitt. He went to New York, but failed to knock the "fans" out of their seats by his boxing. And so he returned to his home in Canada, where he studied boxing, from the ground, up. He says that he has now perfected, but he will have to show us more than he has yet, before we will class him any better than a third-rater.

Knife, of course, is a big favorite. Gunboat won a niche in the Hall of Fame when he riddled the Welte cruiser with a broadside of shot and shell and caused the English ship to sink to a grave in the deep, blue ocean.

There is no denying that Smith is a swell puncher. He packs a terrific wallop in either hand and if he lands one solid smash tonight the good people of McKay's home town in Canada may be remarking in a few days, "Don't he look natural."

WHEN McKay is hit, let us hope that he will not seek a soft spot on the canvas and whimper to his Seconds, "This is no place for a bishop's son."

Once upon a time, but, sorry to say this is no fairy tale, there was a big white heavyweight who fought a powerful negro in the far West. The white man was the son of a minister, and when the pace became fast he sent his faithful manager to collect his end of the purse and then, carefully looking over the floor of the ring, he selected a resting place and murmured, "This is no place for a minister's son."

With his lips parted in a smile and wondering what he was going to do with the coin he had fooled the crowd into paying in order to see him perform, he rested while the referee counted him out. We will not tell you the name of either man, or is it unnecessary for us to do so?

JOE EAGAN, the South Boston lightweight, has got an idea that he is a better boxer than Gilbert Gallant of Chelsea. Eagan meets "Kid" Wilderis in Gloucester on Thursday night, and if he wins he says he will demand another bout with Gallant. It will be remembered that these two boys fought in Gloucester several weeks ago and that Gallant won after a bitter struggle. Eagan feels certain that he would be able to reverse the tables if another contest were arranged.

ALEX McLEAN, manager of Gallant, says that he is perfectly willing to let his protege swap punches with the Pemlemuller boxer. Gilbert is putting on the finishing touches to his training for his twelve-round whirl with Johnny Dohan of Brooklyn, which is scheduled to be decided at Lowell on Friday evening. These two boys met several weeks ago and fought a slashing draw.

MURPHY DECLARES OVERALL WILL SIGN

CHICAGO, April 2.—The new pitcher recently announced by President Murphy as a star player who would bring the Chicago Nationals' batting staff up to an equality with the best in the league, is none other than Orval Overall. Murphy has shrouded secrecy and says that "Orvie" Overall is the man and that he expected his signed contract within a few days.

GAME IS TIE.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 2.—Chief Wilson's long home run drive over the right field fence, with two down and two on in the ninth inning, enabled the Pittsburgh regulars to gain a 7-to-7 draw with the Yannigans.

BIG BASEBALL SQUAD OUT AT EAST BOSTON

Over thirty men are expected to report to Coach Jim Crowley for the first outdoor practice of the East Boston High baseball team today. The boys have been working out for several weeks indoors. They are in good condition and expect to make a fine showing this year.

The schedule:

April 17, South Boston at East Boston; April 28, East Boston at Revere; May 1, Commerce at East Boston; May 5, East Boston at Hyde Park; May 8, East Boston at Brighton; May 12, East Boston at Mechanic Arts; May 20, East Boston at Belmont; May 29, East Boston at West Roxbury; June 4, Charlestown at East Boston; June 13, East Boston at Lexington.

Harvard A. A. Plans to Spend $1,500 On Tennis Courts

The Harvard Athletic Association is spending $1,500 this year in putting new surfaces on the Harvard tennis courts which were useless a part of last year on account of poor surfaces. The demand for tennis courts at Harvard has been so great in the last few years that men have been willing to wait two hours to secure the use of a court for one hour, and this year it was decided to increase the number of courts and spend a part of the profits of last year's tennis season improving the equipment of Jarvis Field, where most of the Harvard courts are located.

Only members of the University will be allowed to use the courts this year. Previously it has been possible for boys in the Cambridge High School and surrounding institutions to use the Harvard courts.

HAUGHTON HAS NOT SIGNED AS COACH

J. Wells Farley of the Harvard football advisory committee, today denied the rumor that Percy Haughton had signed a three-year contract as head coach of the football team.

Haughton has been a very successful coach of the Crimson eleven for the past few years and Harvard is not after his services, but as yet no agreement has been reached.

"I wish it were true that Haughton had signed for three years," said Mr. Farley today," but I am forced to deny the rumor."

STAHL RECEIVES GREAT WELCOME IN CHAMPAIGN

By L. R. MURDOCH.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 2—Jake Stahl and his boys, of world's champions were given a great welcome when they arrived here today. This is where Jake first attracted attention as an athlete and the people of this town glory in every triumph of the big fellow who piloted the Red Sox through the American League race and the world series so successfully last year.

The students of the University of Illinois turned out strong in order to welcome their hero. Jake received dozens of invitations to attend dinners, smokers and other forms of entertainment, but was forced to refuse a most all of them.

Stahl, however agreed to attend a banquet to be given in his honor this evening by the members of the Sigma Chi fraternity of the University of Illinois, which will be held at their chapter house.

The Boston team will remain here for several days and should get in some good practice with the University of Illinois team. The Red Sox will also have the use of the college gymnasium

The world's champions quit Hot Springs at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and were glad to get away from that resort as the place had become monotonous after the long stay there

ON THE INSIDE
LOOKING OUT

By RIGHT CROSS

Manager Chance is trying a dangerous experiment, contrary to all past performances of managers in baseball politics.

At the smokers of Spring go up to cheer the air he doesn't say that he is going to win the pennant this year nor even that he has a sure first division team.

Within of the sort On the contrary he says that he is unhappy. He isn't at all sure that Chance's aggregation will stand up on the big race and the loss of Cheney will work a big hole into his battle array.

Mcgraw will go after the National League pennant with almost the same fighting force that made good last year. McGraw is a married at standing out quite pat. He can change little from year to year but when you look over his lineup of five years back you discover that he has gradually and painlessly built up a new team

Long before a star begins to slip the little manager has some husky rusher sitting on the bench serene after serving notice on the boss that he is ready to step into the star's role there is another star ready to take his place

According to the latest information one of Mcgraw's toughest customers will be hopelessly eliminated. Johnny Evers is making through the Valley of the Shadow of Discomfort at leader of the Cubs.

Grant as a second in command at the right hand of chance, the little second baseman is discovering that there is a great difference in being the sole commander. He is naturally high-strung, sensitive and quick-tempered, none of which is bad for a ball player, but all of it bad for a manager.

With Archer in line, Ty Cobb is the last of the Baldinis. As soon as all the fellows come North and Cobbs settles down to business Archer and Hooper will be found after Ty. Hooper grew very thinking of retiring for the night, doubts that Yale rowing ends at stroke.

* * *

Probably it is at the English system. It has been tried here with but indifferent success. The body swing of the English oarsmen over a four-mile course is impossible on a race of waterway which we are not. A jerk would be done next to no rowing before the shell would have caught up to the terrific strain on the individual muscles

* * *

Yale is also considering going back to the seating of men on each side of the boat instead of on a single file down the centre which, because of the air wind resistance, all of the American experts at rowing long ago decided was best adapted the Amer ag well a part this year

Mike Murphy Given Great Ovation by Students at Penn.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 2.—Heavily wrapped in blankets, Mike Murphy was brought to Franklin Field yesterday to oversee the work of Penn's track men

The reception given to him was long to be remembered. Word that Trainer Murphy was at the field spread like wildfire and students came from every portion of the campus to help in the celebration that was started

Murphy made a short address and was then taken around the field in a touring car. He did not leave the automobile, but talked with retiring Coach Haddock and suggested ... as if it were pertinent and what better for the occasion.

W. W. Hunter and H. B. Heath the managers of the team were called into consultation with Haddock and Murphy, and the report said that the weather permitted he would now take full charge of the team.

M. J. BRADY BACK FROM THE SOUTH

After a trip that took him as far South as it is now course, the Counter Club of Boston, M. J. Brady is back at the Waldorf-Astoria ready to resume his activities as an oarsman until he goes abroad in six weeks to play in the British open golf championship and later in the team match between professionals of the United States and France

A CELEBRATED NOVEL BY FLORENCE WARDEN

PART I.

"NEARLY kept mum, isn't it? Sir James is proud of his flowers. Miss Christie, a ripened ghost here. Miss Christie, so you had better make friends with me, and I'll get you every thing you want.

"Miss Fredda? Why, I am not your enemy, am I?" said I laughing.

"Not as yet, but you must be careful. Now I will tell you who is my enemy and be stamped and looked at and I were going to faint.' 'the man that gave you that name.

I never saw you so much excited a Blue as he wanted to see.

"How did you know I was a man?" I asked curiously.

"Never mind how I know. I am a magician and I am not going to give you reasons in the dark stuff nothing. But, see here, I will tell you how I know if you will give it to me in exchange for your secret. Like to choose in this way?"

I shook my head.

"I don't want to exchange it and I don't care to take lessons in your black art, thanks."

"Now that's very hasty of Miss Christie. But I suppose one must not expect humanity from a lady who wears diamonds, and he glanced again at my pendant, as he had done several times while we talked.

"They are not real diamonds," said I laughing for a moment at his mistake. "They are only paste."

He raised his eyebrows.

"Then allow me to congratulate you. Miss Christie on possessing the best imitation of the real thing I have ever seen

I know something of diamonds, and I was never deceived before."

I was looking at him curiously, for he seemed to speak as if he did not believe me.

"Look! I will go to the rear door," said I for the light was fading, "and then, as you are such a good judge, you will be able to tell."

Suddenly Startled

I walked to the door, and he bent his face down close to mine and examined my pendant carefully. Presently he gave a slight start.

"Am I taking too great a liberty in asking if there are initials on the other side of that?"

"Yes, there are" said I surprised.

"And will you tell me what they are?"

I hesitated. If this gentleman persisted in thinking the ornament was made of diamonds he would think it a very strange thing if he found out that it was Mr. Rayner who had given such a costly present to his child's governess, so I said quietly:

"I would rather not tell."

"I beg your pardon. Will you forgive my curiosity? I have seen only one ornament act exactly like that before. It was in real diamonds, and I made so looked at me. I was wondering if I did such imitated exactly the same as the jeweler who set it, and if the sham twin brother had by some curious coincidence come into your possession."

"How lovely the real one must be."

"Lovlier than yours, I assure you."

"Then don't it seem a pity to spend so much money on real ones?" said I, "What do you think the real one was worth?"

"About fifteen hundred pounds I believe."

"And you thought I had an ornament worth fifteen hundred pounds," said I, laughing heartily. "Oh, if the person who gave it to me could know how he would laugh."

"He would laugh, would he?"

I was annoyed at myself, for I had not meant to let out even the act of the giver of my pendant. He continued:

"He would be pleased, I should think, to have his paste taken for diamonds."

I did not answer, but only laughed again.

"Have any of the ladies seen it yet, Miss Christie?"

"No, and for fear that they would make the same mistake that you have made I shall not let them," said I.

Caught in the Act

And I had raised my hand to take it off when Mrs. Cunningham and another lady came into the conservatory. The elder ladies' eyes fell upon the unlucky trinket at once.

"What are you taking that off for, my dear? It is just what you want around a throat."

"Because I have been teased about wearing diamonds, and they are only sham ones, and I don't want to be teased any more," said I rather tremulously.

"Never mind Tom, my dear. Don't take off your pretty pendant for him. They are certainly very like, though," said she, looking first at them and then at his face. "How can you do and snap your fingers at Tom?"

I raised the velvet obediently, and the gentleman called Tom came softly behind me and took the ends from my trembling fingers and fastened them himself around my throat again.

After dinner, when I was in the drawing room with the ladies, some of them drew me onto a sofa and quizzed me about and petted me, just as if I had been a child, and asked me a number of questions about my life at the Alders and that "handsome Mrs. Rayner."

"And is it true that he is such a dreadfully wicked man, Miss Christie?" said one.

"Yes, it is; she is blushing," said one.

But I was not blushing at all. There was nothing to blush about. I said; people think he is because he plays the violin and goes to the races. He is very kind."

"Oh, we don't doubt that, my dear!" said Mrs. Cunningham, the elder lady.

"You think I like him only just because he is kind to me," said I boldly.

"But I wouldn't like him if he were wicked, however kind he might be."

And Mrs. Rayner was so kind and good, too?

"Oh, yes, she is just as kind," said I. This was not quite true, but I knew already enough of these people to be sure that they would learn if I said, "No"; and it was not poor Mrs. Rayner's fault that she was not as nice as her husband.

Played Some Waltzes

Later I played some waltzes while they danced, and then the gentleman they called Tom, whose name I had now found out to be Mr. Carruthers, led me away from the piano, saying I was not to be made a victim all the evening for other people's amusement, and telling a gentleman who was talking to me that he and I was going to have a serious conversation and were not to be disturbed. He took me to a deep window where there were seats and gave me one, while he threw himself into another beside me.

"Now beautifully you play," said he, leaning over my chair and looking at me. "I never knew such a pretty girl as you take the trouble to learn anything properly before."

I had been so much spoiled that day by flattery that I only answered coolly, "Why shouldn't pretty people learn things as well as ugly people, Mr. Carruthers?"

He was looking on the ground, but he raised and fixed his eyes suddenly on mine as he said:

"Do you know the Dalstons?"

"No," said I, rather pettishly.

"Not Lord Dalston, with his different phrases? You speak as if you were not sure."

"I am sure I don't know him," said I "But I was trying to remember what I heard about him, for I seemed to know the name quite well."

Carruthers Persistent

In the most gravely persistent manner Mr. Carruthers went on probing my memory about Lord Dalston, but I could not even remember where I had heard the name mentioned before. He had to give it up at last. I believe, however, that he thought it was obstinacy that prevented me from telling him.

When at last, long past the hour when the household at Alders retired to rest, we dispersed to our rooms, I made a mistake in my corridor, and found myself in one which led to the servants' wing, and I heard a man's "Don't be in such a hurry. She won't be up for half an hour yet, nor my mate, either. I never get a word with you now."

Suddenly it flashed upon me whose the voice was. It was the voice I had heard talking to Sarah, on the plantation, the voice of Mr. Rayner's friend; and the person he was talking to, and with whom he proceeded to exchange a kiss, was Lady Mina' maid—it was a strange thing. But one about which I could no longer have a doubt.

The respectful man-servant I had met before dinner in the corridor and the visitor who was shown into the Alders as a gentleman, and who was yet on familiar terms with Tom Parker and Sarah were one and the same person.

I was very sleepy and very much preoccupied with this curious discovery when I got into my room, but, before I went to bed, I put, as I thought, my beautiful but unfortunate pendant safely inside my desk, resolved not to wear it again.

I GOT up next morning directly I was called and was downstairs long before anybody else; but I was glad of that, for I wanted to explore the garden. It was a beautiful, warm, bright morning, and I rejoiced, for it would bring the people of Goldham Church for the harvest thanksgiving. I went over the lawn and down the alleys and around and around the flower beds and peeped into the greenhouses and tried to see through the steaming glass of the hothouses, which were locked, when suddenly, turning round c of them, I came face to face with Tom Parker, in his Sunday clothes, with a key in one hand and a bas ket of eggs in the other. He was evidently disconcerted and tried by turning to the door of the hothouse to avoid me. But I accosted him at once.

"Tom—Tom Parker—don't you know me—Miss Christie?" I said.

"Lor', yes, miss, to be sure, so it is! Who'd a-thought o'seeing you here?" said he, touching his hat with rather awkward surprise.

"Why, you must have known me, Tom. You look as if you had seen a ghost."

"Well, the truth is, miss, asking your pardon," said Tom, sheepishly, "that I didn't want to see you. You see, I've been took on here as extra under gardener and help, and the head gardener, he didn't like Londoners, and I don't want him to know as I'm a London chap. So if you would be so good, miss, as not to mention as you seen me before, I should take it kind."

Promises to Shield Him.

"Very well, Tom. I won't betray you," I replied, laughing.

And he said, "Thank you, miss," and touched his hat again, and went off with his eggs. I was very much amused by this encounter and the important secret I had to keep. As if my mentioning that I had seen Tom at the Alders would necessarily entail the awful discovery that he was a Londoner.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

FIND OUT THE REASON

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am very much in love with a girl seven years younger than myself, and I know she loves me, too. I have known her ever since I came to this country, five years ago, but since her father knows I love her he has stopped me going to his house. I cannot forget her. C. S.

HER father owes you his reasons, and you must do your best to overcome them by convincing him of your sincerity, good intentions and well behavior. Don't do anything underhanded.

WORK FOR A BIG BROTHER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of sixteen and am acquainted with a young man of twenty-one. He loves me, but I hate him. He pesters me with his attentions, forcing them upon me. I am afraid of him. What shall I do?

ANXIOUS.

TELL your father, your brother, or if you have neither, go to some friend. You don't have to accept his attentions. Remember that, and make him so understand in a manner that will keep him away.

SHE IS SENSIBLE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man nineteen years of age and deeply in love with a young lady one year my junior. She has told me different times that she loves me, but recently, while on her vacation, I only received one postal card during her entire two weeks' stay. ANXIOUS.

THIS girl who isn't prodigate with pen and ink is wise beyond her years. Be grateful for one card in two weeks. She remembered you. Isn't that enough for a girl to do when on her vacation?

A GOOD REASON

"That pawnbroker plays a splendid game of billiards," remarked Dibbs.

"Ought to," replied Fibbs. "His family's been playing the three-ball game for generations."

RESINOL CURED AWFUL PIMPLES

Whole Face Covered, Now Clear.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 9, 1913. "I was troubled with two or three pimples coming out on my chin. In a week or so my whole face was covered with them. Friends advised me to use different soaps and salves. I tried them, but they did me little good. At last I finally washed the pimples with Resinol Soap and applied Resinol Ointment before going to bed. In the morning I find the swelling gone down, and the irritation gone from the pimples. I tried this treatment for about a week, and found that most of the pimples had disappeared. I kept the treatment up for about a month and then my face was clear of all pimples. I have used Resinol Soap ever since, and find that the pimples do not come back." (Signed) Walter A. Senstrius, 54 Willoughby Ave.

Nothing we can say of Resinol equals what others, such as Mr. Senstrius, say of it. If your skin suffers from itching, burning skin troubles, pimples, blackheads, rashes, chapped face and hands, sores, boils, stubborn sores, or piles, it will cost you nothing to try Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. Just send to Dept. 17-T, Resinol, Baltimore, Md., for a free sample of each. Every druggist sells Resinol.

A Want Ad. often leads to fortune.

Two Royal Lovers

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE world loves a lover. It may smile in tender sympathy; it may deride; it may cheer; it may tear its hair or weep, but down in the bottom of its old heart it loves all who are lovers, and will cease every occupation to gaze after a pair of them with a glance that, no matter what its outspoken evidence, has its origin in wistfulness.

Recent photographs of a pair of lovers caused more than tender amusement; they caused astonishment and expressions of incredulity. There also caused a sigh of restless, for the picture shows a prouder of a day when love will rank higher than any earthly monarch, and no one will dispute.

The lovers were of royal birth! For once the little god Cupid has scored without any intervention of questions of state.

The pictures were of the Princess Victoria Louise of Prussia and Prince Ernest Augustus of Brunswick-Luneburg. The Princess is the only daughter of the German Emperor and the Prince is the only surviving son of the Duke of Cumberland.

Betrothal Announced

Their betrothal was formally announced at Carlsruhe the other day, and they are said to be the happiest pair of lovers in Europe. And the photograph shows it. He has his arm through hers; their hands are clasped, and he is looking down into her up-turned face with an expression of a prince when gazing at his betrothed. As for the Princess! Walk out into the country and somewhere along some country lane you will see a farmer's daughter gazing into the sun-tanned face of a son of toil with the same look; a look that sees heaven beyond.

In the crowded streets of the city, in the more humble walks of life where love has a way of telling its story in tones that are successful, the expression in the eyes of the Princess is duplicated in the eyes of all girls who love. The little sunlight has the same divine light in her eyes. It is a proof that love comes to all in the same guise, no matter what the station of those who open their hearts to receive it.

But the Prince holds the hand of his betrothed, and they are walking on a public street. They are holding hands in public, a privilege hitherto denied all who recognize all laws of etiquette.

Now the question arises since this picture has appeared in print, does the little lover's habit of the Prince and Princess make it proper for a man to hold his girl's hand in public and take her by the arm when they stroll on the street? The etiquette books say no. The Prince and Princess say yes.

Is it a special privilege to be granted only to royalty, or is it to be a new fashion, royalty claiming the right to set the style in love-making as it would decree how long a train a woman shall wear to her gown?

What do you say?

The looks of etiquette say "No," and they are a better standard for lovers in this country than any covenant with a husband by a royal family.

Go on loving! The happiness, the progress of the whole world depend on it, but don't "make love" in public.

GREAT ASSISTANCE

A COUNTRY visitor at a New York hotel, having a dread of pickpockets, went to the clerk and handed him a hundred-dollar bill to be put in the safe.

Asking for it next day, he was thunderstruck when the functionary to whom he had given the money coolly denied any recollection of the matter. Thereupon the countryman went to a lawyer.

"Get another hundred-dollar bill," said the lawyer, "and go, accompanied by a friend, back to the hotel; apologize to the clerk for your mistake; say it was a defect of memory; attribute it to drink or absent-mindedness; deposit the second hundred dollars in the presence of your friend, and come back to me."

The mystified client obeyed his instructions to the very letter.

"Now," said the lawyer, "go back alone to the clerk and ask him for the hundred dollars. Knowing that your friend saw him receive it, he will give back the second hundred-dollar bill. Then take your friend with you the next day, approach the clerk, and hint boldly for the hundred dollars, and as there was no witness to your receipt of the second bill, he will be forced to return the first also."

The ruse proved completely successful. The lawyer sent his bill the next day. It was for a fee of one hundred dollars.

Climate Failed; Medicine Effective

Real, fresh air and well-cooked, nourishing food do help many persons suffering with Lung Trouble. But in many cases the disease is only temporarily "arrested," and something more is needed. Eckman's Alterative is a medicine for Throat and Lung Troubles and has brought about many complete recoveries in many cases where the surroundings were not ideal. Judging by the many reports of recoveries received, we believe it should be used in every case of Lung Trouble. A typical case follows:

Weldon, Ill.

"My Dear Sirs: Through your instrumentality I have gained a greatblessing. On December 14, 1904, I was taken with Typhoid Pneumonia, which developed into Consumption. In February, 1905, I went to Fort Worth, Texas, and later to Canon City, Colorado. After being there two weeks my physician informed me that my case was hopeless. Three weeks later I returned home, weighing 108 pounds, the doctor having given me no assurance of reaching my home alive.

"On July 14, 1905, I began taking Eckman's wonderful remedy for Consumption. To-day I weigh 156 pounds. I am stout and well and can do any kind of work about my grain elevator."

(Affidavit) ARTHUR WEBB.

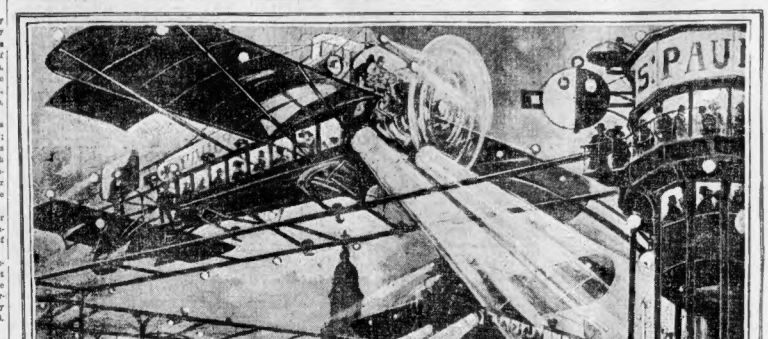
Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Riker-Jaynes Drug stores, Houghton & Dutton Drug Dept. and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of remedies and additional evidence.

To Go to Work via Aero 'Bus; Proposal for First "Station" in Heart of London, Offered by Designer



M. Henri Lanos, a well known London artist who has specialized in aerial art, has drawn the above conception of the way Londoners of the future will solve the traffic congestion problem.

M. Lanos says that the areo 'bus as portrayed above will carry people of the cities to and from their daily work in the cities.

He suggests a central 'bus station to be located on St. Paul's Cathedral, in the very heart of London, and declares that if present conditions continue the only way for Londeners to solve its transit problems is by means of the flying machine.

Will Boston beat London to it?

Married Life Third Year

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

Warren Is Amused and Helen Indignant at the Exhibition of Cubist Art.

"HERE'S another choice bit," was Warren's sarcastic comment, as they paused before the bleak-eyed, blood-shot, distorted face of a woman. "Pleasant expression that."

Helen gazed at it in silent resentment. She had exhausted her phrases of "How hideous," "How ghastly," "How perfectly horrible," and now she viewed the pictures without comment on their freakish distortions.

She was ever in New York with Warren and she had been hearing everywhere of the "Cubists" and "Futurists." Every one was discussing this exhibition of advanced art. The papers were full of it. But not until this final night had she been able to persuade Warren to take her.

Now that he was here, he was enjoying it hugely. "It's all so blamed rotten that it's great," was his sweeping comment.

"Ah, here we have a pleasing study of the female form," he chuckled, as they pushed their way through the crowd to the next picture.

It was a crudely drawn nude woman of a reddish purplish hue, with bulging muscles and a battered face. With a growing feeling of indignation at the insulted intelligence, Helen stared at this monstrosity while Warren looked it up in the catalogue.

A Good Title

"Ah, yes, here we are—'The Sleeping Maiden.' I should say 'The Nightmare' would be a better title. Bold, too, by Jingo!"

"Hello, Curtis! I didn't know you were over in New York, too."

Helen turned to find Mr. Stevens in the crowd behind them.

"Well, what do you think of it?"

"Guess they don't allow profanity around here," grinned Warren. "And I don't want to be put out just yet."

"Can't stand for Maxfase and that crowd, eh? Been in the Cubist room yet?"

"No, we're trying to get educated up to that."

"Oh, come on, there's a little gem there I want to show you."

Mr. Stevens plowed them through and pointed triumphantly to a large canvas, before which stood a gaping crowd in frank bewilderment.

"There you are! Prize puzzle picture No. 1—find the king and queen. Some things I want to look up in the next room. See you later."

"What did he mean, dear? What is this supposed to be?" asked Helen, staring at the strange confused objects on the canvas before them.

"'Entrance of the King and Queen,'" read Warren from the catalogue.

"No—no, it can't be that!"

"No; 120, isn't it? Well, that's what it says here. Looks as much like that as anything else."

"You say the king's on the left?" came an anxious woman's voice from behind them. "Where? I can't see it."

"That's his head up there in the corner," explained another voice. "And here's his leg—this thing that looks like a saw. See it now?"

"No," hopelessly. "I've been here three times and can't see it yet."

"But, dear, I don't understand," burst out Helen resentfully. "Do they really expect any one to see anything in that?"

Their Object

"Told you these Cubists painted these pictures with their tongue in their cheek. They've set out to fool the public, and from the size of this crowd I should say they were doing it. Come, let's find the one they talk so much about—that nude woman coming downstairs. 'Guess this must be it," crossing to where the crowd pushed their way through the crowd to the next picture.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

There was less strength in some stock markets in early trading today the European war situation inspiring less confidence as to a speedy declaration of peace. Prices advanced in the London Copper warrants market, however. This was helpful to copper shares in trading here. At the opening Copper Range, Granby, Trinity, Isle Royale and Greene-Cananea were all a little higher. Some other coppers showed fractional losses then or later.

In the industrial list during the first hour Boston & Maine and New Haven remained unchanged, but American Agricultural advanced 2¼ points.

There was some profit-taking in New York during the morning. Around the beginning of the second hour Union Pacific was about a point lower and Reading and Amalgamated but weakened a little more.

Trend of New York Market.

Almost all the leaders showed small gains at the opening in New York, but within a few minutes prices worked towards lower levels. News from Europe regarding the Balkan situation was not wholly satisfactory. The attitude of the allies is delaying the peace declaration which stock markets have been awaiting for weeks. In early London trading, however, the sentiment displayed towards American stocks was more cheerful than that in which home issues were regarded. A cablegram reads: "In concluding the monthly settlement considerable ease existed. The Montenegro episode is to an extent offsetting the beneficial effect of more abundant money supplies."

Early declines included Canadian Pacific 1⅛, while American Can receded 1⅛, on account of apparent opposition to the heaviness of the list. Among the other declines were Amalgamated ⅝, Anaconda ⅝, Central Leather ⅝, Steel ⅛, United States Rubber ⅛, Union Pacific ⅛ to ⅜, Northern Pacific ⅛, Reading ⅛ and Brooklyn, then lost its gain and declined ⅜. Southern Pacific advanced ⅝. Other advances included Atchison ⅛, Pennsylvania ⅛, Norfolk & Western ⅛@⅜ Colorado Fuel and Iron ¼ and New York Central ⅛.

The Curb was irregular.

Tariff Revision to Be Light?

It is said that President Wilson and Chairman Underwood of the House Ways and Means Committee have agreed upon a tariff bill to be submitted to the Democratic caucus on Saturday, and that the former has learned Congress will not pass a measure radically revising custom duties. The President will not insist on anything in regard to the bill, except what he expects will cut the cost of living and deprive manufacturers of a "monopoly of opportunity."

The bill, it is stated, carries a fifteen-cent duty on wool and puts sugar on the free list. The latter provision is an ornament to florish. Both the President and Mr. Underwood know that a bill adding sugar free lists to the gross of a show is to get through the Senate. The sugar provision is set up to be knocked down, leaving the sugar duty the idea it has gained a glorious victory.

The President has been told that in making up his tariff schedule he is now before him the following members of the Ways and Means Committee favored their own districts:

Hammond of Minnesota with a protesting duty on grain, binder twine, seed and flour; Shackleford of Missouri with a duty on wool, zinc and lead; Garner of Pennsylvania with a duty on coal; Garner of Texas, cattle, mohair and onions; Urshin of North Carolina, a rearrangement of the lumber schedule.

Situation in London.

The London financial correspondent of the Associated Press cables that the London market got a decided setback by the sudden death of J. Pierpont Morgan and Montenegro's defiance of the Powers.

"The sentiment shocked," he says, "was caused all-round depression. Curiously enough, American securities showed the most resistance. On Monday morning they opened with some keen bidding, evidently on commission account. Then they remained quiet until about 2 o'clock, when rumors of Mr. Morgan's death were confirmed. Shortly afterward New York opening prices came in and sustained the market.

"We quite understand that this firmness is, to a certain extent, artificial, and that the real effect of Mr. Morgan's death will not be felt for several days."

London Copper Quotations.

The London warrants market opened firm with spot copper up 5s. and futures 10s.

The March output of Copper Range subsidiaries totalled 5,142,000 pounds, compared with 4,820,000 in February and 5,522,000 in March, 1912. Champion production last month was 2,304,000 pounds; that of Hancock 1,806,000 and of Trimountain 942,000.

It is expected from Michigan that Hancock will begin by June 1 to make settlements of copper rock to the Point Mills steel rolling plant of the Calumet & Hecla.

The Anaconda Mining Company reports that production from the Anaconda and Great Falls Smelters in March was 22,-900,000 pounds, compared with 21,250,-000 in February and 25,900,000 in March a year ago.

Financial News in Brief.

A Pittsburgh dispatch says that practically all steel plants that were recently inundated are getting into operation days before it was expected they would be ready to resume.

Earnings of the New York, Ontario & Western for February show a decrease of $57,373 in gross and $7,262 in net. For eight months there was a gain of $271,707 in gross and $204,497 in net.

Gross revenues of the New York Central lines in the month of February were $22,810,630, a gain of $2,360,774 as compared with the same month of last year. Net revenue, after deducting taxes and other expenses and taxes, totalled $4,188,140, an increase of $864,155.

The United States Treasury Department began the month of April with $60,050,646 of working balance in the federal government. The surplus of receipts over disbursements for the current fiscal year to date, exclusive of Panama Canal and public debt transactions, has reached $12,020,140, as compared with a deficit of $9,931,951 on April 1 last year.

It is estimated that $55,737,547 was distributed to investors yesterday in the form of dividends from railroad, industrial and other corporations. Compared with April 1 last year, the payments made show an increase of $8,951,860, due entirely to the distribution of the $85,502 made by the American Can Company on account of 2¼ per cent. of back dividends on the preferred stock.

Eight new companies which appeared in the April 1 dividend list are the Continental Can Company preferred, California Petroleum Company common and preferred; General Baking preferred, General Fireproofing Company common, George W. Helme Company common, S. S. Kresge preferred, Weyman-Bruton common and Willys-Overland preferred.

Baltimore & Ohio has ordered 1,500 freight cars, the Louisville & Nashville has purchased 1,400 steel underframes, and the Seaboard Air Line is in the market for fifteen passenger cars.

Charles M. Schwab has resigned as president of the Bethlehem Steel Company, a subsidiary of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, but was made chairman of its board, a new office in the corporation. E. G. Grace was elected president of the Bethlehem Steel Company.

MONEY GIANTS' BATTLE FACES MORGAN FIRM

By B. C. FORBES.

Business Editor American.

J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., is not a second J. P. Morgan. That he is not a cipher. He has studiously kept in the background during the life of his father, whom he worshipped. He now, however, will assert himself.

There will be no need for aggressive action, for a strong arm to direct the firm's affairs, need for a fighter.

A battle of banking giants is brewing. J. Pierpont Morgan & Company will figure in it. Kuhn, Loeb & Company will seek to overthrow it. The Morgan Company will not be idle. Other firms talked of as likely to come to the front are Lazard Freres, Goldman Sachs & Company and perhaps H. B. Hollins & Company.

It will be a battle of races as well as bankers. The stakes are enormous.

The Morgan firm will be handicapped in a way the public could not have suspected until the death of its head by a statement concerning the silkiness of J. P. Morgan's fortune. Had Mr. Morgan utilized his millions in the purchase of income-bearing securities, he could have bequeathed them a princely revenue, and this capital would have been of infinite value to the firm in any contest for banking supremacy. But Mr. Morgan did, practically latterly, a regal contempt for personal gain. He spent the greater part of his fortune on art, on archaeological research, in philanthropic works—the number of millions he gave to his favorite hospital may never be revealed.

Disposing of Morgan's Purchases.

Instead of bringing in money, Mr. Morgan's purchases will cost money to maintain. Their disposition is a question now exciting keen interest.

The Morgan firm, consequently, does not for some months to come millions as had been imagined. Mr. Morgan and the Pujo committee it was character, not cash that counted. In Mr. Morgan's own case this was eminently true. Nor are any other members of the Morgan house tremendously rich. If any one is classed as a multimillionaire. There are no Bakers or Stillmans or Schiffs or Speyers in the partnership. Although the profits of the firm run into many millions in certain years, it is well known that Mr. Morgan drew the lion's share. "I am the firm," you will remember he told inquisitors.

Kuhn, Loeb & Company control an abundance of capital. The Schiffs, Otto Kahn and Warburgs are all rich. Jacob H. Schiff is among the oldest banking families extant, have been rich for generations. Mr. Kuhn, quarter or perhaps the most prominent financier in London today, his recent activities in combining the traction companies of the metropolis, having added greatly to his importance. Jacob Schiff is reported to enjoy the very highest standing abroad and especially in London. Paul Warburg man has won the reputation of being an extremely brilliant and energetic banker.

Intrusted With Much Money.

The $100,000,000 deposits of corporations now placed with Morgan & Company are not all or nearly all to be withdrawn. Some will be withdrawn. Again, no banker was ever intrusted with so much money as has been intrusted to Morgan & Company. he might see fit. Scores of wealthy men and women reposed absolute confidence in Mr. Morgan's judgment, and gave him carte blanche in using their funds. This condition has been changed, of course, by Mr. Morgan's removal.

Vague rumors are afloat of simmering dissension among the Steel Trust interests, but the exact status has not yet been revealed. One possibility is that Morgan & Company will not continue to carry all the surplus cash of the corporation.

GIRL TENOR TO SING FOR MRS. BELMONT

LONDON, April 2.—Miss Ruby Helder, the English girl tenor, arrived in New York on the Oceanic today especially to sing for Mrs. August Belmont.

STREET CARMEN'S DANCE.

The Boston Street Carmen's Union will hold its third dance at Mechanics Hall tonight. The grand march will be led by President Matthew J. Higgins and Mrs. Higgins.

Mrs. Higginson to Dance Again in Public for Charity

Mrs. Alexander H. Higginson, formerly Jeanne Caldwell, with sixteen other Boston society women, will be seen in the dance of "The Rosy Hours" at the Boston Opera House tomorrow evening.

The dance is a feature of "Pandora's Box," to be given in aid of the Huntington Sanatorium, in which seventy-five women prominent in Boston society will take part.

As a high character dancer Mrs. Higginson made an enviable name while she was a member of the professional ranks before her marriage she has seldom danced in public.

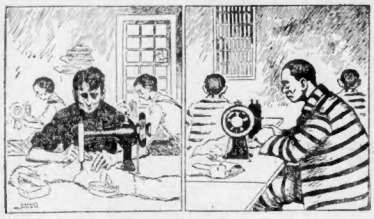
You Saw This Picture--Monday

Did You THINK About It? It Is the THINKING, Not the Picture, That Counts

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner



What is the difference between these two men? You saw their picture in this newspaper Monday—a big picture, five columns wide.

That picture was printed NOT TO INTEREST YOU, BUT TO MAKE YOU THINK.

These two men are both PRISONERS.

What are the differences between them? The chief difference is that one of them is sure of his board and lodging. He is the one in stripes.

Another difference is that one of them without the stripes can vote.

But as he doesn't know HOW to vote, as he can't get the millions like him to vote together AS MEN, and as they persist in voting separately in little bands or party groups like sheep, the vote doesn't mean much.

A prisoner in the prison, or a prisoner in the sweatshops—what is the difference?

One is a man disgraced. But he, the jailbird, is safe, warm and sure of a living.

The other is "a free man," consumptive, tired, worried, driven almost to death.

Sometimes in Rome brothers would meet in the arena, put there to fight for the amusement of the mob.

When each recognized his brother and refused to strike, red hot irons were pressed against their backs until they DID fight and kill each other.

That was how they made brothers fight in Rome.

We make them fight in a different way in America. We don't put red hot irons against their backs, but we put something just as red and just as hot, which is DESPERATE NECESSITY, and so they cut each other's wages and cut each other's throats in a different way.

THINKING is what counts and gets results in this world.

We hope that you, the thousands who see this newspaper, did some thinking about that picture published Monday. And we hope that you will all do some good, hard thinking about the big picture published on this page today.

You all know what it means.

You all know what temptation is to a girl.

You know the part that low wages plays in helping along the work of destruction so much discussed now.

But being thinking men and women, you also know that a low wage is only a PART.

A bad example, false standards, MAN'S BRUTALITY ESPECIALLY—all these count in the work represented by that picture "Whispering."

We have asked Dorothy Dix to write a few words to go under the picture. But the really important words are those that will be written in the minds of the millions who look at the picture today.

THE STORMS

By CHESTER FIRKINS

AND you are still the Master. We have reared
Cities and citadels of seeming might,
But in the passing of a single night
You rend them unto ruin. We who feared
Not flood nor wind nor wreckage fire-seared.
We shudder helpless in the thunder-light;
The garners cherished and the souls endeared
Emptied and sudden slaughtered in our sight.

Our castled cities tower to your skies
'Gainst wind and wave we pile our stone and mold.
Powered of genius, panoplied of gold,
We build the bastions of our high emprise.
But you, but let the plunging torrent rise,
The winds awake on glutted rivers rolled—
We die as the reft robin fledgeling dies—
We perish as the beast in jungles old.

We dream that we are conquerors of Earth;
We think that we are mighty, that we dare
Scorn your grim power—till we glimpse the flare
Of burning Death 'mid holiness of Birth.
What is our godliness and wisdom worth
Against your strength embattled unaware?
You are the Master, ever, everywhere,
Deadly and gentle o'er t he wide World's girth.

WHISPERING

LURKING in the shadow behind every young girl, so close that it can almost touch her, is a demon of temptation that is forever whispering in her ear. What does it say? To each it promises her heart's desire if she will only listen and go a little way down the primrose path.

To the poor pretty girl it promises rich clothes, jewels and laces that will make a fitting frame for her beauty.

To the half-starved girl of the sweatshops it offers food and warmth and shelter, the softnesses and ease of life.

To the weary shopgirl it whispers of fast automobiles that go like the wind, mad joy rides and gay suppers where champagne foams in the glasses, and all is laughter and light and merrymaking.

To the ambitious girl it holds out the allure of swift success, the thrill of seeing one's name in flaunting letters over a theatre door.

To the sentimental it talks of love, of romance, of great passions that gave all and counted not the cost, and that defied all the laws of God and man when they stood between two hearts.

To all the worn, and weary, and lonely, to all who have struggled and been defeated, it whispers "What's the use? Be happy, if even for a moment. Take what you want, whether it be right or wrong."

WHISPERING

By DOROTHY DIX

And so temptation gathers them in, the poor little girls who have turned their heads to listen. They don't know enough to know how to answer it, or even to be afraid, because the temptation comes to them in so many guises. Sometimes it takes the appearance of a handsome young man, sometimes of an old friend of the family. Sometimes it is dire need, and often and often it is just the things a girl wants. That's the way it gets them.

It's always just behind—close—close—girls, this demon that is ready to seize you and devour you, body and soul. Go surely, and in fear and trembling, and when the devil of temptation begins to whisper in your ear, run home to your mothers. That's the only safe place, for mothers have a charm to exorcise witchcraft.
